Today

One Brave Chinese.
Wild Day, Wild Street.
Nitrogen Replacing Gold.
Queer Germany.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928.)

CHANG TSUNG-CHANG, off to the Chinese battle front, waves goodbye to 20 wives and concubines, promising to come back victorious. Anemic Westerners can only admire Chang's courage and verve.

Ladies whom he began marrying young, when he was a gang coolie, include Chinese, Japanese, Koreans, Russians and Mongolians. Win or lose, that's a brave Chinese.

WILD times in Wall Street yesterday. Mergers to fire the imagination of speculators were announced; others promised.

Stocks at rising prices changed hands 10,000 and 15,000 shares at a time. Tickers were 44 miutes behind the market.

Apparently Federal Reserve gentlemen will have to find some way of jacking interest rates up to 10 or 20 per cent. It seems hard to convince the buying public that American securities are not good, that we are not in prosperous times and that control of the world's money market should be moved to London.

GOLD has been the unit of value since men first found strange, heavy little yellow grains washed down by mountain streams, thousands of years ago.

Men have struggled for gold and died weeping because they couldn't take it along, and have murdered each other for gold.

NOW gold, science tells you, "Gold won't always be the unit of value." Nitrogen will replace it, being the foundation of our food supply, and of life.

Every square mile of air above the earth's surface carries 20,000,000 tons of nitrogen, enough to last the world 12 years.

Any way of getting that nitrogen out of the air cheaply would be marvelously important to farmers, especially.

Henry Ford wanted to do it at Muscle Shoals, but the fertilizer trust wouldn't let him.

THEY do things differently in the queer German republic.

Hugo Stinnes, Jr., whose father was the richest man in Germany, accused of tampering with Germany's bonds, trying to make money illicitly, is not yet convicted, but he is in jail.

And for the present he will stay there.

It will amaze our high-spirited Americans that steal a government oil reserve. They are on their private yachts, never saw a jail, and probably never will see one.

ANOTHER step in flying, nine airmen starting a nonstop flight from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Some will make the flight, some fail.

This is sure, before you are much older, flights will be made "Every hour on the hour."

The Curtiss people, backed by important bankers, have organized a "Curtiss Service," airplane taxis to take you anywhere, whenever you want to go, enabling you to connect with a fast express train that left before you were quite ready, to overtake an ocean steamer 500 miles out.

Flying will be a reality soon.

THE theater with actors moving and speaking may come back into its own. Mr. Swope's General Electric Company is prepared, through radio-television, to let you see and hear actors as they play their parts on the stage.

You may hear and see in New York the marvelously trained actors of the Paris Theater Francais or hear voices and watch twinkling toes on the stage of La Scala in Milan.

SCIENTISTS assembled in Glasgow tell you one thing to remember, that "nerve cells require oxygen to preserve them."

So does every other cell in the body. Practice deep breathing, keep the windows open, exercise hard enough at least once a day to rid the lungs of "residual" air and live longer.

A. J. KOBLER leaves the American Weekly to devote his time to a newspaper enterprise of his own. Success to an appallingly energetic citizen.

YOUTH that asks, "How can a young man get along nowadays?" please observe how Kobler created for himself a job on the American Weekly, that soon paid him twice as much as the people pay the President of the United States, and a good deal more.

Kobler told W. R. Hearst, owner of the American Weekly, "I would like to run your color advertising."

"What makes you think you can get color advertising?" asked Hearst.

"This," said Kobler, hauling out several contracts for full page color advertisements. Kobler got the advertising before applying for the job.

"How much salary do you want?" asked Hearst.

"No salary," said Kobler. "Look at these contracts. They call for $5,000 a page, whereas your rate now is $4,000 a page. I want to make the rate $5,000. I want to get half of that extra thousand dollars, you the other half."

THAT'S how one energetic young man got himself a job.

Now a page of color in the American Weekly costs $15,000 inside, $17,500 outside. And, according to Albert D. Lasker, head of Lord & Thomas, who ought to know about advertising, that AMERICAN WEEKLY, with more than 5,600,000 circulation, net paid, is the greatest individual advertising power in the United States.

BUS LINES STIFLED HERE

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

In practically every great American city except Pittsburgh the bus lines are owned by interests not connected with the street car operators. They are forced to compete. They have to fight for their existence. By regulation they are compelled to charge only a reasonable 10-cent fare.

In Pittsburgh the street car lines have been allowed to monopolize the local bus field. The Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company is owned by the Pittsburgh Railways Company. This in turn is owned by the Philadelphia Company, which is a part of the Standard Gas and Electric System, one of the giant power interests whose business and public relation methods have been under investigation by the Federal Trade Commission.

The Pittsburgh Railways Company is dependent on this city for a living, but it does not want to give it a reasonably priced and complete bus service.

It is afraid that bus travel will take customers away from the street cars. For this reason it has maintained a 25-cent fare, a fare

Thaw, Morris Hurt In Air Race Crash

DECATUR, Ind., Sept. 13.—Col. William Thaw II, of Pittsburgh, and Capt. John P. Morris, also of Pittsburgh, piloting a Lockheed-Vega plane in the nonstop air race, were forced down on a farm 15 miles south of Decatur, Ind., at 12:30 o'clock this morning by a broken oil line.

Col. Thaw suffered a dislocated hip and both were badly bruised. They were unable to summon aid and lay in the wreckage of their plane until found by a farmer at 6 o'clock this morning. They were brought to a hospital here.

CONDITION FAIR

Their condition was pronounced as "fair."

Thaw had a dislocated right hip and severe bruises all over his body. He was semi-conscious when he reached the hospital.

Morris was found to have a fractured pelvis, a dislocated collar bone and severe body bruises. He remained in a semi-conscious condition.

Hospital physicians estimated that the men lay unconscious for two hours after the wreck.

Neither of the fliers was able to say anything upon arrival at the hospital.

When the plane, owned by Col. Thaw, left Roosevelt Field yesterday, others referred to it as a "death trap." The great monoplane was so constructed that Thaw had no chance to jump in case of accident.

Capt. Morris was at the control when the accident occurred.

When the aviators discovered their oil line was broken they dropped a flare in an effort to locate a field for landing. The flare was extinguished, however, before the plane reached the ground and it struck a fence. The plane was demolished.

MOST POWERFUL PLANE

Thaw was the biggest man in the race, weighing more than 200 pounds, and his plane had the most powerful engine in the race. His ship was a Lockheed Vega similar to the Yankee Doodle of Art Goebel, the favorite, but it had a Pratt and Whitney 500-horsepower motor, 100 horsepower more than Goebel's Wasp.

Before the take-off in New York, some aviators expressed the opinion that Thaw's engine was too heavy for the ship and considered

RUMOR TYRRELL JUROR PASSED NOTE

A Sunday school superintendent's wife stepped into the witness chair in Criminal Court today to tell a jury of the terror which caused him to kill his fellowman.

As rumors spread through the courtroom in which Fayette J. Tyrrell is being tried for the murder of Philip Clark in First Christian Church, Munhall, last May 13, that District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner will take a poll of the jury to determine if a juror passed a note to a person in the courtroom Wednesday, Mrs. Clara Tyrrell, the defendant's wife, was called to the stand by her husband's attorneys.

She followed her husband who occupied three hours of the court's time in telling his version of the murder and being cross-examined. It was expected that she would be on the stand most of the day.

Judge Robert A. Stotz, presiding, apparently had heard nothing of the rumor, despite the fact that while the morning session of the trial proceeded District Attorney Gardner questioned six persons in the courtroom alleged to have witnessed the transfer of the note as the jury filed from the room.

Tyrrell, who left the stand after a grilling cross-examination by Assistant District Attorney John F. Haggerty, stoutly maintained that he had not threatened to kill Clark and Rev. J. D. Waters, pastor of the church, a few minutes before Clark was shot.

The defendant admitted under Mr. Haggerty's questions that he sat in Munhall Police Station and read the comic section of a Sunday Pittsburgh newspaper following his arrest within half an hour after the murder.

Six times Philip Clark threatened to "get him," Tyrrell told the judge and jury, was his reason for shooting Clark to death.

"I feared he would kill me, or do me bodily harm on the morning I killed him," Tyrrell gave as his excuse for placing a revolver in his pocket when he started to church last Mother's Day.

Tyrrell took the stand when court opened today and had not finished his testimony when noon recess came. His testimony was halted for a few minutes to hear Mrs. Gertrude Mundell tell from a cot on which she was wheeled into the courtroom, how she overheard Clark say on the street one day in Munhall:

"I'll get that ——."

"Once in the church," Tyrrell said, "Clark told me:

"'If you don't dismiss my wife's divorce suit, I'll "get you" if it takes a year.'"

"After the Clarks were separated," Tyrrell continued, "and Mrs. Clark had announced her intention to sue for divorce, Clark said to me:

FAMILY THREATENED

"'By God, there'll be hell to pay. I'll wipe you and your whole family off the face of the earth. You know I killed one man.'

"Another time," the defendant testified, "Clark called me a 'yellow cur, a dog, a shyster lawyer.' Once I met him in the street. He told me:

"'I'll kill you, you ——'

"I was constantly in fear of my life," Tyrell added. "He followed me through the streets. He watched my house. He hung around my office. He'd call me over the telephone and threaten me. I was in terror of him."

GIVES LIES TO PASTOR

Under cross-examination, Tyrrell flatly gave the lie to his pastor, the Rev. J. D. Waters. He denied saying, as the pastor had testified, that he pushed a gun against the Rev. Waters and cried:

"I'm here to clean up."

He denied that he had anything to fear from the outcome of a hearing by the church board of Clark's charges against him. Fear of the hearing going against him was not mixed with his fear of Clark that morning in the Rev. Waters' study, he insisted, as commonwealth counsel insinuated such might have been the case.

His was not a mission of vengeance as he walked down the church aisle that morning, patted the head of a Sunday school pupil with his left hand, and drew a gun with the right, he said.

"Clark stepped forward, with his right hand at his hip pocket," Tyrrell testified. "He extended his hand, and there was some bright object in it. That may have been those glasses—but I thought and believed it was a gun. So I drew my gun and fired three times."

HILL POLICE REPORT SEIZING TWO STILLS

Four persons were arrested early today by Hill district police, who conducted two raids and reported confiscating two stills, with quantities of moonshine whisky. A 50-gallon still and moonshine were found, they said, at 1302 Pasteur street, where Arthur Gardner and John Richardson were arrested. At 1218 Bedford avenue, another still was found and Joseph George and Viten Mahson were arrested, it was reported. The four were charged with keeping disorderly houses.

MAIL TRUCK HITS MAN IN WILLIAM PENN WAY

Albert Sumer, 18, 460 Heming place, suffered a broken right leg when run down by a mail truck at William Penn and Strawberry ways this morning. E. R. McKenna, 5415 Glenwood avenue, driver of the truck, took Sumer to Mercy Hospital and reported the accident to police.

THAW, MORRIS CRASH UP

Col. William Thaw, II, and Capt. Jack Morris, Pittsburgh fliers among the favorites in the cross-country nonstop air race, today had their hopes and a $35,000 plane wrecked by a broken oil line as their ship whirred over the outskirts of Decatur, Ind. In the forced landing Thaw suffered a dislocated hip and both fliers were badly bruised. They were removed from the wreckage six hours after the crash and taken to a hospital.

TELLS OF THREAT

Smith Gets 1 City

Scranton is heard from in the straw vote canvass of Pennsylvania by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. First returns from that center of the anthracite belt indicate that predictions Gov. Alfred E. Smith will have strong support in that area are well founded.

Adherents of the New York executive stoutly assert that he will win in Lackawanna county, of which Scranton is the center. Political observers incline to the opinion that Smith has a good chance of capturing that county, particularly if his apparent strength is maintained. They also see considerable Smith support in the adjacent anthracite counties, Luzerne and Schuylkill. Lackawanna and Luzerne are the third and fourth largest counties in the state.

While Smith is running strong in

MRS. LEVINE CALLED BOOTLEG AGENT

Mrs. Rose S. Levine, of 717 Hastings street, described by government attorneys as "believed to be the financial agent for three bootleggers," won temporary respite from contempt charges in Federal Court today by agreeing to answer questions asked her as a witness in the grand jury rum ring probe.

Upon her promise to answer "certain questions," United States Attorney John D. Meyer halted contempt proceedings for the time being while Mrs. Levine returned to the grand jury room, again to face the Federal inquisitors. Charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition act against her and her husband, A. M. Levine, were withdrawn by the Federal prosecutor.

"We believe this woman to be the financial agent of three bootleggers," Assistant United States Attorney Ralph H. Smith told Judge F. F. Schoonmaker at the hearing of the contempt proceedings which grew out of Mrs. Levine's refusal to talk in the presence of the grand jury yesterday.

"This," added Smith, "is indicated by bank records in possession of the grand jury. The grand jury desires information from Mrs. Levine concerning an overdraft of an alleged bootlegger."

Judge Schoonmaker ruled, and the

No Defense, Says Road Mender to Neglect Charge

BUTLER, Pa., Sept. 13.—E. C. Shira, road supervisor of Parker township, made no defense to the charge that he neglected to keep the dirt roads of his district in good condition and awaits sentence by Judge John R. Henninger. The charge was made by John L. Horneman, a mail carrier.

POLICE STOP MERCER HORSE RACE BETTING

MERCER, Pa., Sept. 13.—County detectives today ended a 46-year practice at the Mercer Fair, when the betting on horse races was stopped on orders of the district attorney.

TYRRELL'S STORY OF KILLING

Attorney Fayette J. Tyrrell, of Lincoln place, on trial for the slaying of Philip Clark in the Munhall Christian Church, last May 13, today on the witness stand told the following story of Allegheny county's first church killing:

"I walked down the auditorium. I saw Virginia Wood in the rear of the church. I wanted to ask her to play the piano at Sunday school, so I started down the aisle. I heard my name spoken. It came from my left. Clark and Mr. Hanley and some others were standing there. Clark had his eyes on me and I never saw a more enraged look on any man's face. Clark stepped back of Hanley and was facing me. He had something in his hand. I thought it was a gun. I said,

"'Don't come any farther.' But he came on. I fired. I fired again. The next thing I knew his arms were around my neck. I tried to break his hold. Then somebody got hold of his arm. I stood there, dazed. Somebody handed me the gun. I didn't really know where it came from."

SPLINTER IN HEART, WRECK VICTIM DIES

PRINCETON, W. Va., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—James Lovell, 20, of Beeson, was killed yesterday when his automobile sideswiped a truck near Spanishburg. A splinter of wood from the side of the truck was driven through his heart.

COOLIDGE JOINS HOOVER CAMPAIGN FORCES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—President Coolidge is to participate actively in the presidential campaign and his plans probably will be announced at the White House in the near future.

His part in the effort of the Republican party to retain control of the national government, formed one of the subjects of a conference he had with Herbert Hoover at the Executive offices late yesterday, after his return from his summer in the hills of Northern Wisconsin.

NEW ENGLAND SPEECHES

The conference was of unusual duration, lasting for an hour and a quarter. There was no official announcement regarding the meeting but it was stated that the Chief Executive was anxious to be helpful in the campaign. This naturally led to the surmise that on his forthcoming visit to New England, Coolidge will make one or more speeches in his home section of the country, in some portions of which the Republicans know they have to contend with rather stiff opposition.

Hoover made a rather complete report to the President on the political situation, generally, as he views it at this stage of the campaign, and the President in turn gave the Republican presidential candidate his opinion as to the situation in Wisconsin and others of the Northwestern states from which he received reports during his stay at Cedar Island Lodge on the Brule River.

MELLON VISITS PRESIDENT

After the conference Secretary Mellon, who aided in turning the tide for Hoover at the Kansas City convention, accompanied the President and Hoover to the entrance to the executive offices where the camera men were waiting, but it was learned that the Treasury chief had not been present at the political discussion. He arrived at the executive offices over his accustomed route to a rear entrance, just as the conference ended, having called to pay his respects, as he was unable to greet the President upon his arrival in the early forenoon.

SCRANTON GOES FOR SMITH

Scranton, the initial returns from that city are not sufficient to overcome a large vote cast for Herbert Hoover in the rural counties, which enabled the Republican candidate to increase his lead in the state totals to date to 3,052.

The latest standing of the candidates in the Pennsylvania poll, conducted in connection with the nation-wide canvass by the Hearst papers, is as follows: Hoover, 13,123, 8,768 men and 4,355 women; Smith, 10,071, 6,700 men and 3,371 women.

These voters in 1924 cast their ballots as follows: Coolidge, 16,341, 10,769 men and 5,572 women; Davis, 1,862, 1,418 men and 444 women; LaFollette, 1,689.

it possible that the vibration might shake loose gasoline or oil lines.

Thaw himself took little heed of the talk of danger, merely remarking when asked about his chances in case of accident:

"Well I'm fat and I'll bounce."

The Thaw entry was the last of the nine planes in the race to take off in New York yesterday, making the hop after dark at 6:56:20, Eastern standard time. At the field it was referred to as a "suicide ship" because of its construction, which forced Thaw, the owner-passenger, to sit in a dark tunnel from which it was believed he could not escape if the plane crashed.

GOOD TAKE-OFF

Morris was one of the two pilots to take off yesterday in such expert style that the watching crowds were not given at least a moment of trepidation, the other being Goebel. And this despite the fact that he took off after dark on a field that has no floodlights. Most of the pilots went down the runway with numerous bumps and breath-taking hops, but Goebel and the Thaw ship roared from one end to the other with the smoothness of a bird's flight and took the air with all a bird's grace.

MAMER DOWN IN WYOMING

SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Nick Mamer, Spokane entrant in the nonstop transcontinental race from New York to Los Angeles, was forced down, unhurt, at Rawlins, Wyo., at 9:38 o'clock this morning. Mamer, flying a Buhl Sesqui plane, telegraphed to his wife here.

ISEMAN PASSES TULSA

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Lieut. Com. Jack Iseman, flying Charles A. Levine's trans-Atlantic monoplane, the Columbia, in the New York to Los Angeles nonstop air race, passed over Tulsa at 11 a. m. today.

The Navy flier circled McIntyre airport at a height of about 400 feet and dropped a message in a sack telling his identity and asking that the word be telegraphed to New York.

"Columbia over Oklahoma City. To Los Angeles via Albuquerque," the message read.

"He thought Tulsa was Oklahoma City," D. A. McIntyre, owner of the field, explained.

DRY REVOLT THREATENS IN 40TH DISTRICT

If the members of the Republican County Committee from the Fortieth District do not nominate a "dry" candidate for State Senator at their meeting Saturday, an independent entry may be placed in the race.

This was intimated today by former Representative John W. Vickerman, who is directing the campaign of Park H. Martin, former burgess of Bellevue and one of the leading contenders for the nomination at Saturday's meeting, which will be held in North Side Carnegie Hall.

"The dry forces of the district are united behind Martin," Vickerman said, adding, "This district always has been dry. The Republican leaders will make a mistake if they nominate someone who does not appeal to the voters of the district."

Herman Brandt, of Ross township, who has the support of Senator M. G. Leslie in his fight for the place, is not satisfactory to the dry groups of the district, Vickerman said.

The Democratic state executive committee yesterday chose C. O. Wherry, of Tarentum, as the candidate of that party for the place.

woman agreed, that she would answer questions before the jury if they did not incriminate herself or her husband.

An answer filed by counsel for Mrs. Levine to the contempt proceedings set forth replies to a number of questions which she had previously declined to answer. One of these had to do with $34,000 concerning which she had been quizzed before the grand jury.

This sum, Mrs. Levine's answer averred, was, to the best of her recollection, the sum paid to her on account of a mortgage for the sum of $25,000 and a note on which was due a balance of between $8,000 and $10,000, this obligation having been due from Grossman and Cohen, 229 Second avenue, New York.

THAW'S RACE PLANE PASSES PITTSBURGH

Planes of several nonstop transcontinental air racers were heard over Pittsburgh last night, among them the plane of Col. William Thaw and Capt. Jack Morris, Pittsburgh fliers. Thaw and Morris are flying a Lockheed-Vega monoplane and they started from New York at 8:55 o'clock last night.

Their plane passed over Bettis Field at 11:35 o'clock, and, as it was directly over the airport, the motor was shut off a moment, signalling "all's well." Another plane was heard over Carnegie at 10:20 o'clock. It was thought to be that of Art Goebel, trans-Pacific aviator who recently shattered all records for a non-stop hop across the continent.

Another plane was heard high over Bettis field at 9:15 o'clock, but it was not identified. Both Bettis and Rogers fields kept their landing and beacon lights burning as a guide to the racers.

HARDWARE MEN MOBILIZE TO STABILIZE BUSINESS

Urging as their slogan, "standard goods at standard prices," 1,500 hardware dealers, last night, gathered at a banquet sponsored by the Dover Manufacturing Company of Dover, O., and discussed plans for stimulating business in electrical appliances throughout the tri-state district.

The dinner was part of a nation-wide campaign among hardware merchants to standardize prices and stabilize business, especially in electrical appliances.

Representatives of the Dover Co., headed by Charles T. Johnson-Vea, president, laid before the merchants various marketing suggestions and explained their particular line of electrical merchandise. It was the first time in the history of hardware men that an electric lighting company was asked to participate. George E. Whitwell, general sales manager, represented the Duquesne Light Company and promised co-operation.

Technical topics in the construction of the various electrical appliances were discussed by representatives of the Dover company, who illustrated why a chemical composition is used as a heating element in their products instead of the more common element, mica. By use of this compound, Dover products conform to a high standard, the dealers were told, while at the same time, prices are universal.

Ways and means of meeting unfair competition were discussed and the dealers were told the only way to insure protection was by handling a standardized product.

Harry Fisher, assistant to the president of the Dover company, spoke at length on sales matters. He was credited with being largely responsible for the success of the gathering, having personally called upon hundreds of retailers in this district during the week preceding the dinner. J. E. McCullough, president of the Pittsburgh Dealers' Association, accompanied Mr. Fisher on his tour and together they put across last night's gathering.

Frank A. Hegner, vice president of the Pennsylvania State Hardware Dealers' Association, commended Mr. Johnson-Vea and Mr. Fisher for their untiring efforts in bringing about the gathering of dealers and urged co-operation in the standardization movement.

Among other speakers were Roy Soule, editor of the Hardware Dealers magazine; George Brown, of Punxsutawney, president, and Glenn Pierce, of Philadelphia, secretary of the Pennsylvania and Atlantic Seaboard Association, and William Hetznecker, of the Nilco Lamp Company and Sylvania Tubes Company.

The meeting was said to have been the largest of its kind ever held in Western Pennsylvania.

DAPPER "EYEWITNESS" CALLED FAKE

State police and city detectives who last night had in their possession a "confession" of an eye witness to the Dapper murder received a disappointment when it was learned that the story told by their prisoner was only the offspring of the imagination of an allegedly feeble minded person. This final blowup of a good clue leaves the sleuths just about where they were a day or two after the crime occurred.

The belief that there may have been a connection between the physician's death and the existence of a liquor ring was strengthened yesterday by the summoning of Henry Dapper, father of the victim, before the Federal grand jury. The elder Dapper is vice president of the Fort Pitt Brewing Company. He is scheduled to appear before the jury again today.

The eye witness story of the murder was told to police by John Meckley, 24, of Whitney avenue, arrested Monday by state police in connection with a Bakerstown holdup. Six other men are under arrest as members of the gang, implicated by Meckley who, police later learned, was recently an inmate of an insane asylum.

Cracksmen Break Two Empty Safes

STEUBENVILLE, O., Sept. 13.—Yeggs who have cracked safes in six Jefferson county towns during the past week, blew a strong box in the office of the Elliott Lumber Company at Smithfield, O., early yesterday and found it empty.

They also cracked a safe in the Cleveland and Pittsburgh Railroad Station at Raymond, O., and found it moneyless.

"BIG RUM MAN" REVEALED AS DRY AGENT, 8 INDICTED

The Federal grand jury discontinued its rum conspiracy probe long enough yesterday to conduct an investigation and return a true bill against eight men, charging them with conspiring to violate the prohibition law and with unlawful possession, sale and transportation of whisky.

The alleged offenses occurred in Cambria county.

In the preliminary investigation, Joseph A. Frayne, assistant prohibition administrator, was said to have posed as a big whisky buyer, negotiating purchase of 100 barrels of whisky for $40,000.

In the indictment it is set forth that on August 13 three of the defendants met in Shardt's hotel, Meyersdale, and gave written instructions to Frayne for delivery of 25 barrels. Frayne was said to have paid $10,000 for this to a "go-between," the money afterwards being recovered.

Those named defendants in the indictment are Samuel Maiorana, Anthony Teresi, Clarence Mansfield, Vincenzo Castalgno, William Boyle, Thomas F. Boyle, Frank Patta and John B. Shardt.

Man Shot Dies; 3 Held

Samuel Fernello, 26, of Ninth avenue, Homestead, who Sunday night was shot down with his brother near the brother's home in Montclair street, Hazelwood, died early this morning in Mercy Hospital.

In the same hospital, the brother, Antonio, 32, of 723 Montclair street, is in a critical condition. Three persons, all residents of Carnegie, are being held by city detectives.

Before Samuel Fernello died he named Frank Migliavzo, of 305 Lexington avenue, Carnegie, as the man who did the shooting. Migliavzo escaped at the time, abandoning an automobile, police say. August Gilardi, 28, of 200 Morrow avenue, and Patsy Scalise, 27, of 227 West Main street, both Carnegie, are under arrest.

Police say that Migliavzo communicated with the two men and asked them to go to his home and remove a shotgun and a rifle. They were detected leaving and discarded the weapons. They were arrested yesterday along with Mrs. Annie Gilardi, mother of the prisoner. Police believe through the three they may locate Migliavzo.

LINDY LEADS ARMY TRIO IN DEAD FLIER'S PLACE

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—The fifth great day of the national aviation meet here yesterday saw America's hero of the air, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, taking part in the air extravaganza, filling a gap made by Monday's fatal crash of a crack Army pilot.

Piloting an Army bombing plane, Col. Lindbergh took the air as the leader of the Army's stunt trio, "The Three Musketeers," filling the place of the trio's leader, Lieut. J. J. Williams, who died Monday night after crashing his plane to earth while he and his teammates were doing a difficult outside loop. Lindbergh, with the two remaining "Musketeers" flying behind him in V formation, climbed high into the air, while below them maneuvered six Army bombers from Crissy Field, San Francisco. Zooming dives from the heights, swift turns and sharp banks brought the grandstand crowds to their feet in roaring applause. Simulating the maneuvers of planes in warfare, the Lindbergh-commanded trio effected successful attacks from the air upon the squadron of "enemy" planes below them, but the new team of "Musketeers" disappointed the crowds by failing to thrill with any loops or barrel rolls. Lindbergh landed his plane, with his mates following, after about 20 minutes in the air.

PARENTS ASK $25,000 FOR INJURIES TO SON

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Miller have brought suit against C. G. Richards, Lexington, Mass., for $25,000 damages for injuries to their son, Henry Miller, Jr. It is alleged that on August 22 the boy was struck at Grand Vue avenue and Parnassus way by the defendant, who was driving at high speed on the left side of the street. Attorney Morris G. Levy represents the plaintiffs.

Amundsen Wreckage Found

OSLO, Norway, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—What is believed to be additional wreckage from the plane in which Roald Amundsen and five companions were lost at the start of their attempt to rescue members of the Nobile Arctic expedition, was found this morning in the southern part of the Strait of Tromsoe. It seemed to be a part of a wing from the French Latham seaplane piloted by Rene Guilbaud and carrying, besides Amundsen, Lieut. Lief Dietrichsen and three French naval airmen.

The relic was found in the vicinity where on September 1 fishermen picked up one of the pontoons of the plane. Discovery of that pontoon convinced both Norwegian and French authorities that the Amundsen expedition had perished. Identification of an additional relic of the machine would be taken here as confirming that belief.

POLITICIAN'S "PULL" FAILS TO BLOCK FINE

Political "influence" doesn't mean much in Central Police Court, Mose Kelsh, styled by police a "North Side politician," found to his consternation today.

Mose parked his car in Market street Wednesday and came back to find Patrolman Charles Dye placing the well-known little green tag on the windshield. He tore it up in front of the patrolman and was immediately promenaded through the downtown section to Central Police Station.

"Ten dollars or 10 days," Magistrate John Orie told him, "and remember," he added, "this is one police court where political influence doesn't count."

MOVIE MAKERS ENJOINED

The Lyric Amusement Company, of Erie, will continue to show moving pictures. Judge F. P. Patterson in Common Pleas Court today granted an injunction restraining the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Distributors, Columbia Pictures Corporation, F. B. O. Pictures Corporation, Pathe Exchange, Inc., Fox Film Corporation, the Vitagraph, otherwise known as Warner Brothers, and the Standard Film Service Corporation, from cutting off the supply of pictures. The suit was brought by H. E. Hammond, owner of the Lyric company, who alleged service was suspended because he had refused to arbitrate a dispute with the Paramount Famous Lasky Corporation and refused to file bond to protect them on future pictures.

CRIPPLED POLICEMAN ASKS $50,000 DAMAGES

John Harding, of Homestead, is named as defendant in a suit for $50,000 damages filed in Common Pleas Court today on behalf of Ralph G. Sloan, former motorcycle policeman of Homestead. The suit is the outgrowth of injuries sustained by Sloan when he was struck by an automobile driven by Harding on December 16, 1926. Sloan was riding a motorcycle at the time and had a passenger in the side car. Sloan is a cripple and confined to bed, it is said.

SIXTH ST. BRIDGE WALK OPEN TOMORROW

HOWARD STORE TO OPEN HERE

After making, in the space of a few years, what has been termed by expert clothing men "a really remarkable record," the Howard Clothes Company of New York is opening its tenth store, at 233 Fifth avenue, early this month.

Joe Goldman, for 14 years a prominent figure in men's clothing circles here and well known as an organizer of basket ball teams and for his participation in other sports has been appointed manager of the latest Howard establishment.

According to President Langerman of the Howard Company, it was a letter from a Pittsburgh tourist who had purchased Howard Clothes in one of the Eastern stores of the chain, that first caused him to think seriously of this city as a possible site for a Howard store.

"We frequently receive congratulatory letters from people in middle western cities who have been touring the East and have purchased Howard Clothes," Mr. Langerman said, "But several from Pittsburgh residents seemed particularly enthusiastic.

"They arrived at a time when we had just opened our fifth store in greater New York and were thinking of expanding westward. Cleveland and Detroit seemed favorable, but it finally boiled down to a choice between Cleveland and Pittsburgh, and we selected Pittsburgh."

The idea of selling clothes direct to the public through their own stores is not an idea introduced by the Howard chain, it was explained, but they have carried it to a high point of development. Originally the company did nothing but manufacture fine quality clothes for the trade. Its wholesale price to retailers all over the country was $22.50. Then came the opening of the first Howard store in New York city. Howard soon opened more stores in New York, Brooklyn, Boston, Syracuse, Philadelphia and Providence.

She is joined in the suit by her husband, who asks $5,000 of the amount. The alleged attack occurred February 23, when the woman says she protested against her husband playing slot machines in the saloon and drinking liquor sold there.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

GUARANTEED

By LILA WANDEL

"DON'T you think you've kept me dangling about long enough, Joan?" he asked stopping the lavender sport car neatly within two inches of the bumper of the roadster ahead. "No, seriously, haven't I proved to you that I'm capable of caring for a wife? You must admit that I've been fairly successful." He said this with the attempted modesty of a man who knows he has made good.

Joan with her green-gray eyes on the traffic jam ahead laughed lightly. "Why don't you accept my 'no' as final, Clem, and concentrate on another girl?"

With a watchful eye on the red signal light Clem answered slowly, "Probably for two reasons. First because I know you're undecided and secondly because you are just the kind of a girl I want for a wife. You're all for certainty. You want to be dead sure of everything you do. You buy guaranteed stockings and guaranteed bonds and you want a husband who'll guarantee you a good home and living, and what's more I don't blame you." He guided his car slowly through traffic then shot ahead.

Joan waited until they were in the next block before continuing. "Clem," she began, "if you think I'd marry for money, you're all wrong. But I do want a certain assurance of success. You've made a lot of money, but what if you lost it? Your success might have been chance. How would you react of you were suddenly wiped out?"

Clem's eyes narrowed. "I'll tell you what I'll do right now. I'll turn over my whole business, every cent I have in my name, to you and show you how I can make good a second time. Would that be enough of a guarantee?"

Joan said pertly, "Well, what if I accepted this offer? Just what would you do to keep the wolf from the door?"

Clem laughed as he slammed on the brakes. "I have something right now in mind that's very intriguing. Williams is going fast to the wall. I'd undertake to manage the business with the understanding that 51 per cent of the stock would be turned over to me as soon as I had things going profitably. I'd pay for the stock out of my share of the profits, see?" For a fraction of a second he turned his eager eyes toward her. "How about it, Joan?"

Joan mumbled half to herself, "Williams—making special machinery—wasn't Uncle Lucas talking about that?" More distinctly she added, her eyes filled with indecision: "Clem, I'm satisfied that you're a dyed-in-the-wool go-getter, but do you get my point exactly? Hardly, when it's not qiute clear to me!" She laughed gaily. "I must appear awfully mercenary."

"Not to me," he assured her. "I like a girl who plays safe, who looks before she leaps. Look at most of these blind janes who marry men who've failed in everything they've undertaken and then wonder why their marriage isn't a success? Take Will Lacklin for example. The girl who marries him is letting herself in for a whole lot of trouble. He's failed to make good half a dozen times. This last venture, hear about it? Guess he's cleaned now."

Joan flushed. She remembered the day when she considered Will the most wonderful boy in her crowd. She herself had predicted a brilliant future for him but that was almost 10 years ago. At 18 she would have married Will if he had proposed marriage.

"Turn in the next street, Clem, and let me off. I'll see you tonight at the James' dinner. Thanks so much for the lift!"

Alone in the street Joan studied some hats in a shop window and thought, "I suppose in the end I'll marry Clem. He's so successful in everything why shouldn't he make a success of husbandry? Wonder do I really want a guaranteed husband?" She frowned at a little green felt hat and promptly walked in and bought it.

Perhaps the saucy green hat on her head made Joan suddenly decide that lunch alone would be a solitary affair. She remembered a certain cafeteria two blocks away which Will Lacklin patronized day in and day out and decided just a bite there would be enough with the James' dinner ahead. Besides she was rather sure of meeting Will at this hour and just seeing or talking with him would make her decide about Clem. Every girl knows that eligible young men are scarce and Clem was not the kind who would wait forever. Another thing Will must be feeling very blue and she had been more or less friendly with him all these years.

It was Will who spied her first as she came along with her tray and hurried up to greet her. He was beaming, his dark eyes sparkling with delight. "Why, Joan Mills! You look like spring coming through the snow drifts! Green always was your best color."

Joan felt the exhilarating warmth of this admiration as she seated herself. There was something very buoyant and positive about Will, more so today than ever before. He certainly did not look like a man who had just "been cleaned out."

"Of course," Will was saying as he anticipated her need of the sugar, "you've heard about my affairs?" He seemed strangely delighted.

"Why, no," lied Joan, wondering why his smile was so contagious, "tell me about it, please."

"I perfected the revolutions on my machine!" He simply glowed. "You can't imagine what that means to me, Joan. Of course, there are a couple of snags in the operating of the gears—"

"Will!" Joan interrupted him in astonishment, "that same machine you used to tell me about?" He nodded enthusiastically. "And every time you were ready to put it on the market, something happened; the mills shut down or credit was canceled, or— But you haven't lost faith in that machine, even with the knowledge that it isn't quite perfect, have you?"

Will Lacklin stopped smiling, but his eyes were so bright and keen they seemed to pierce her heart. "Joan Mills, people say you want everything guaranteed. Don't you really know anything about loyalty and love? Don't you know that if everything in this world was dead sure, adventure and faith couldn't live? I'm not pleading for myself, but for your happiness wherever and with whom you will find it—because I love you."

Men had told her that before, but somehow from Will it sounded so absolutely—guaranteed.

He gave her no time to answer. "I love that machine almost as much as I love you, Joan, and about the same length of time, nearly ten years."

Suddenly Joan found herself pleading, "Uncle Lucas will back you in that Williams business. You'll make good, you'll be a success; Williams' line is machinery —"

Will took her hand, right there on the shining white table. "Joan, you'll have to find somebody else for the Williams business. I'd no more fail my machine, nearly perfected, my purpose in life, than I'd fail you."

Something deliciously warm and comforting filled Joan's heart. She could not tempt Will away from his machine and nobody could ever tempt him away from her, such was the quality of his love. Defects in character shaded by the charm of youth might become more or less conpicuous; she might grow fat and even near-sighted; she might fail in a hundred little things, but Will Lacklin's love would always be there, like an ever safe shelter.

Whether Will sensed her thoughts from her finger-tips on his hands or her gray-green eyes revealed everything, he said firmly: "Joan, you're 28, don't you think you're old enough to marry me?"

Joan answered softly, "Yes, Will, we've waited entirely too long."

Howard $22.50 Clothes
hit Pittsburgh

We're not the oldest concern in the business and we're not the biggest--not yet--but boy we know our needles and thread

Howard $22.50 Clothes

Here is the model we call Howard's Ritz, and if it's not a $50 garment in design, fit and fabric we never saw one. The Ritz has a close-fitting collar, loose-rolled lapels and a slightly fitted back. And it's built on the heavy linen canvas, non-pull haircloth foundation spoken of elsewhere in this story . . . We never mention the names of Howard customers because our price is so low, but plenty of prominent young Wall Street executives are wearing the Ritz today because they like it!

Yessir, gentlemen, while you've wondered whether to squander the fifty or speculate in cheap clothes, we have amazed New York, Boston, Philly and the entire East with the superb quality of Howard Clothes.

From now on, you're going to get more for your money—more quality in the tailoring, more choice of patterns, more substantial fabrics and more good taste in the designing. Howard Clothes sell for $22.50, just like a lot of other clothes. That's a very low price, and some men don't think they can get quality at that figure. In some cases they're right. But here's the low-down on Howard:

Not so many years ago, we were manufacturers only, and we made the same grade of clothes, the identical quality that we make today. We did business with retailers only, from coast to coast. Some of them sold our goods for $40, and most of them got more.

One day one of the officers of the corporation walked in with a broad smile and a bright idea. He said: "Why don't we sell direct to the men who wear Howard Clothes? Give them the benefit of the wholesale price. Open our own stores. Save money for the public and build an independent outlet for ourselves!"

So the first Howard store was opened in New York. We couldn't handle the crowds! But then the test came: The men who tried us once came back for more. Today there are Howard stores in the principal cities of the East, and in that area every 14th man wears Howard Clothes.

Look for these Howard EXTRAS.

1—Howard is introducing at $22.50 a Camel-Hair Topcoat. Quality never before equaled below $50.

2—If the satin lining in your Howard Topcoat or Overcoat wears out within two years we replace it absolutely free of charge.

3—Howard's Tuxedo at $22.50 includes your choice of a ribbed, flowered or figured silk vest.

4—About 50% of all Howard Suits come with two pairs of trousers. Price remains $22.50; the wear is doubled.

5—We carry sizes up to 50 stout, and alterations are free if you need them.

6—Every Howard garment is built on a foundation of fine imported heavy linen Canvas, scientifically constructed with non-pull haircloth. This is basted to the coat by careful handwork. One of the Howard expert needlemen is pictured below.

7—And don't forget the Howard full guarantee: If you don't think your Howard Suit has made good, we cheerfully refund your money.

PHILIP ROSFELD

Philip Rosfeld, 4, 201 Aidyl street, Brookline, today is in South Side Hospital recovering from injuries suffered when the brakes released on a parked truck after he climbed to the driver's seat. The truck ran down a steep grade and embankment and crashed onto street car tracks.

TWO TOTS HURT IN TRAFFIC

A little boy and a little girl experienced the perils of traffic dangers yesterday and both had almost miraculous escapes from death or serious injury.

Jean Christopher, 2½, of 1106 Pitt street, Wilkinsburg, wandered from home and in Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg, stepped in front of an automobile and then moved aside only to be struck by a street car. She received only a few bruises on elbows and knees.

Philip Rosfeld, 4, of 201 Aldyl street, Brookline, climbed onto the driver's seat of a parked truck near his home and released the brakes. The machine ran down a steep grade and over a 60-foot embankment onto street car tracks. He was taken to the South Side Hospital suffering cuts and bruises. The truck was wrecked.

Mrs. Mantell May Play "Hamlet" As Well as Juliet and Others Of Shakespeare's Heroines

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

MRS. ROBERT B. MANTELL, known to the stage as Genevieve Hamper, is going to continue the interpretation of Shakespearean drama, to which Mantell devoted the last 25 years of his artistic career. Mrs. Mantell is a Rosalind as delightful and a Juliet as sympathetic as any that have been seen on the American stage since the best days of Marie Wainwright. But she may also play the part of Hamlet.

Sarah Bernhardt and other actresses have played Hamlet with success, so Mrs. Mantell's appearance in the role would be no sensational novelty. She would unquestionably give a good interpretation, as she had studied the part for a year before her husband's death, under his direction. She had intended to take his place some time if illness prevented his appearance. Now death has rung down the curtain on his distinguished career.

It was in Munich that I heard of Robert Mantell's passing away. Marcella Craft, the American singer who rose to fame at the Royal Opera in Munich, told me the news. "Did you know Robert Mantell had died?" she asked casually, in her studio one afternoon.

More than a minute elapsed before another word was spoken. For over 25 years I had known Robert Mantell, one of the noblest and gentlest spirits among American actors. As a boy I had seen him play Loris Ipanoff with Fanny Davenport in Sardou's "Fedora," a marvelous performance, and many years later came to know him personally when he launched his Shakespearean revivals, which brought him to the height of his fame. He was a great actor, but he was even a finer gentleman, in the truest sense of that word.

Mrs. Mantell's decision to devote herself to Shakespeare will be received with interest everywhere. There is no great Shakespearean actor on the boards at the present time. Revivals of some plays, for the exploitation of all-star casts, are not sufficient to satisfy the popular appetite. Besides there is a great demand for Shakespearean performances by the students of many of our institutions of learning. Reading Shakespeare is well enough, but Shakespeare wrote his plays to be acted, and so there is a great fallow field for a good company presenting the best-known Shakespearean plays at popular prices.

Mrs. Mantell should be able to secure a leading man who would fit into the repertoire, and there need be little doubt the venture will be as successful as the last season of Robert Mantell proved, when "standing room only" was to be had nearly everywhere he played, as in Pittsburgh at the Nixon Theater in February this year.

ORGANIZATIONS LIST HOMER SMITH TRIP

PLAY AND MOVIES -:- OF COMING WEEK -:- BRING THESE FACES

Ethelind Terry, prima donna of "Rio Rita," Ziegfeld musical production coming to Nixon Monday.

Prince Tokio will be seen in the Keith-Albee vaudeville bill which will reopen the Davis for the coming season.

Vilma Banky is co-starred with Ronald Colman in "Two Lovers," next photoplay in the Penn.

Clara Bow will be seen in war service in "Wings," noted aviation film coming to the Stanley.

Pasquale Amato has a role in "Glorious Betsy," sound picture scheduled for the Regent screen.

Nancy Carroll is "the girl" in "The Water Hole," to be screened next in the Grand and Liberty.

DAVIS RESUMES NEXT WEEK

The Davis begins the new season next Monday night, after being closed for the summer months. Six, instead of five, Keith-Albee acts are to be given this season, the opening bill's stage feature to be the Libby Dancers in "Sports a la Mode." On the screen Ford Sterling will be seen in "Chicken a la King." There will be four shows daily, presented in continuous performance.

Ziegfeld's celebrated musical comedy, "Rio Rita," is to open the regular Nixon season Monday evening next. The organization, coming here direct from New York, is en route to Chicago, where it is to play an indefinite season.

Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky make their farewell appearance as a starring duet on the screen in "Two Lovers," the film feature in the Penn next week. The stage show, titled "Teeing Off," features Teddy Joyce and a company of 40.

"Wings," aviation picture, comes to the Stanley next week. In the cast are Clara Bow, Charles (Buddy) Rogers, Richard Arlen and Gary Cooper. It will be presented with synchronized and sound effects, exactly as it was shown in New York and in the Nixon Theater.

"Four Sons," a new Fox-Movietone sound special, begins an engagement in the Aldine Monday as the featured attraction on the all "see-and-hear" program there. It boasts a 60-year-old woman as its star in Margaret Mann, who struggled for years in Hollywood.

Next week's burlesque in the Academy will be "Hindu Belles." Hindu Wassau, a novelty dancer, and Hap Freyer, comedian, head the cast.

"The Water Hole" is the first Zane Grey picture in color since "The Wanderer of the Wasteland." With Jack Holt and Nancy Carroll it comes to the Grand and Liberty next week.

Coming to the Olympic Monday is "Road House," a "melodrama of jazz mad morals," with Maria Alba, Lionel Barrymore and Warren Burke.

Billy Maine and company will head the vaudeville in the Harris the last three days of this week in a skit, "You Oughta See Phil." Jacqueline Logan, in "Stocks and Blondes," will be on the screen.

Conrad Nagel and Dolores Costello, in "Glorious Betsy," will open the Regent Saturday. It is a sound and talking picture.

The featured vaudeville attraction in the Sheridan Square the rest of the week will be Harry Kapne, known as the world's supreme mentalist. Jacqueline Logan, in "Stocks and Blondes," will be the screen feature.

MARION DAVIES IN "BUDDIES"

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright, 1928, King Features Syn., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 12—Although Marion Davies will not return from her European vacation for another six weeks, Metro is busily arranging the details of her next picture, so that no time may be lost when the star returns to the studio for work. Her new vehicle will be a screen version of the Broadway success, "Buddies," which enjoyed a particularly long run with Peggy Wood in the part which Marion will play on the screen.

While the film will be synchronized to sound, it will not be an all-talkie. However, it is planned to inject dialogue in some of the sequences. These will be carefully selected with a view to strengthing the dramatic situations of the story, the idea being that many scenes are more effective when played in silence. Marion's current film, "The Cardboard Lover," is proving a greater success than any of her previous efforts. Which is saying a lot when one remembers the popularity of "The Patsy," which immediately preceded it.

Following "Show Boat," Universal will star Joseph Schildkraut in "The Bargain of the Kremlin" as his second picture under the recently signed five-year contract. This will be a sound and talking picture throughout its length. A feature will be that Joseph will make his screen debut as a violinist. Playing well on this instrument is only one of this talented player's many accomplishments. Among others he has the most complete mastery of languages enjoyed by any of the stars.

Metro goes on signing stage stars. Odette Myrtil, of the "Follies;" Charles King and John Charles Thomas are forsaking the theater, at least temporarily, to appear in audible films bearing the Lion trademark.

"Not a cough in a Film-ful" says Norma Talmadge after the Blindfold Test

"When you see my new United Artists' picture, 'The Woman Disputed,' you will notice that I smoke cigarettes in several scenes.

"Not wanting to show partiality to any one of the four leading brands, I decided to make my choice via the blindfold test, which I had heard of many times. Happily, I picked Old Golds.

"I found them smooth, mild and delightfully cool.

"Hereafter, when I am required to smoke I shall naturally insist on Old Golds. There's not a cough in a film-ful!"

You can tell Old Golds . . . just as Norma Talmadge did . . . by their honey-like smoothness . . . their kindness to your tongue and throat. Because Old Gold uses no coarse top-leaves of the tobacco plant . . . no withered ground-leaves . . . only the delicate heart-leaves, golden ripe!

DONATION BOOSTS MILK AND ICE FUND TO $2,183

A contribution from C. Virginia Nisbet to the Sun-Telegraph Fund today is the first gift to be listed for several days. This brings the fund to a total of $2,183.27, a gain of about $100 over last year's final total.

In days gone by when a tag day was conducted yearly for the Milk and Ice Association there was no trouble meeting the expenses of the association, for the fund virtually financed it for the entire 12 months. Now, however, there is a great difference. For many reasons tag days are no longer practical, expenses have increased and the number of babies grows no less. Yet the bills, which are larger than ever before, must be met and met, not only in June, July, August and September when the fund is growing, but during all the other months of the year as well. Just because the fund is closed, those tiny babies can't close their little mouths. Indeed, it is when they are hungry that their mouths are the widest open and they take the only means they know of demanding what their small stomachs are needing—their quart of milk a day.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Horse Shows Attended by Two Distinct Groups—Those Who Know and Love Horses and Those Who 'Just Go'

HORSE shows are attended by two distinct groups of people, as you may have noticed—those who really know and love horses and those who just "go to the horse show." These latter folks like to watch what is happening in the ring, of course, but they enjoy much more watching their neighbors and noting who is sitting with whom in whose box. And, naturally, the personnel of these groups changes materially even among our local horse shows.

This is really just a vagrant thought brought to mind by noticing how many of the same names appear in the lists of those who are taking an active interest in the various shows around Pittsburgh. Richard Mellon, for example, is on the committees for both the Pittsburgh Hunt Club show on Saturday and the Greensburg show next week—and there is no need in my mentioning how keenly interested he always is in the Allegheny Country Club show. His name appears in the news again today, this time as one of the donors of trophies for the Pittsburgh Hunt Club show.

Miss Margaret Coulter is another lover of horses whose interest never flags and whose name always appears among those active in promoting the shows. Naturally, she is on the committee for the Greensburg show and she is also a donor of a trophy for Saturday's show at Otasaga Farms, the home of Herbert G. Lytle, near Sharpsburg.

Among other donors are Charles L. Flaccus, who exhibits his horses at many shows throughout the East; George McC. Davison, Dr. E. Slifer Walls, George Paull, John S. Hunter, A. R. Edwards, David I. McCahill, George L. Collord, William D. Evans, Joseph C. Trees, George H. Cherrington, Mrs. Simon T. Patterson, Ralph Flinn, Howard Heinz, Wallace W. Smith, William G. Costin, Gordon C. King, J. Raymond Price and Thomas B. Moreland.

A WEDDING interesting both because of the families concerned and because the date had originally been set for October, took place Monday noon in Sewickley Valley. The bride was Mary-Lapsley Caughey, daughter of the Edward Grant Caugheys, of Pine road, Edgeworth, who had chosen October 20 for her marriage to Dr. George Martin Guest, of Cincinnati, son of B. A. Guest and the late Evaline B. Guest, of Hoopeston, Ill. They were married in the Caughey home by the Rev. W. W. Reid, of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, in the absence of the bride's pastor, the Rev. Dr. Owen Davies Odell, pastor of the Sewickley Presbyterian Church. The date was set ahead because Dr. Guest, who is director of research work in the Pediatric Research Foundation of the Children's Hospital and assistant professor of children's diseases of the University of Cincinnati, has found it necessary to visit several of the eastern hospitals and laboratories in the interest of the new buildings under construction at the Cincinnati hospital.

The bride wore an ivory satin Louiseboulanger wedding gown, and you might be interested to know that her wedding ring was that of her great-grandmother, Mary Ann Dering, of Virginia.

After visiting New York, Baltimore and Washington, Dr. and Mrs. Guest will motor through Maryland and Virginia, stopping for several weeks at Richmond and White Sulphur Springs. After November 1, they will be at home in Burnett avenue, Cincinnati.

THERE was a wedding last Saturday in Canada which united a scion of a Pittsburgh family to a Canadian girl. This was the marriage of Mary Vourneen McCarthy, daughter of the Jesse Overn McCarthys, and William Cecil Hogg, son of the late George Alexander Hogg and Mrs. Hogg, of Shady avenue, which was solemnized in St. Paul's, His Majesty's Chapel of the Mohawks, Brantford, Ontario, by the Rev. William Wright, of St. George's Church, Toronto.

Lillian P. McCarthy, of Montreal, was her sister's maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Mary Hogg, sister of the bridegroom; Flora Cowan, Elizabeth McDonnell, Georgina Pearson, and Marion Sharpe, of Toronto; and Isabel Duncan, of Brantford. Randolph Holladay, of Wilmington, Del., was best man and the ushers included John B. McCormick, H. Allen Machesney, Kenneth B. Miller, Thomas W. Smith, of Pittsburgh; Davis McCarthy, and Wilmott Wilson, of Toronto.

A reception at the McCarthy home followed the ceremony and later Mr. and Mrs. Hogg left for a motor trip to the northern lakes. After about a fortnight they will return to Pittsburgh to live.

THE wedding of Miss Rachel Belle Parsons, daughter of George L. Parsons, of Aspinwall, and William Arthur French, son of Robert G. French, of Kimberly, Ontario, took place Saturday at 4:30 o'clock in the First Presbyterian Church of Aspinwall. The Rev. Dr. H. A. Gearhart, assisted by the Rev. Arthur E. French, uncle of the bridegroom, officiated. The bride wore white satin with a veil of Brussels lace and tulle, and carried orchids, white roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Mary Martha Parsons, as her sister's maid of honor, wore taffeta in three shades, peach, blue and orchid, while the bridesmaids, Miss Emma Lou Lytle and Mrs. Harry Klingensmith, wore taffeta in orchid, blue and green. They carried Dresden bouquets. Don Henry, of Detroit, was best man and the ushers included Maurice French and Edward French, brothers of the bridegroom; John McClements, of the East End, and T. Chester Parsons, of Altoona. A reception at Webster Hall followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. French are motoring in Canada.

THE marriage of Miss Elizabeth Dierks, daughter of Mrs. W. C. Dierks, of Edgewood, and John O'Hara Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Anderson, of Forbes street, was solemnized yesterday at 5:30 o'clock in the garden of the Dierks home by the Rev. Dr. William R. Farmer. The bride wore white satin with a princess veil and carried a prayer book. Her attendants wore frocks in the autumn colors and carried dahlias. Mrs. Robert F. Barnett, of Rosslyn Farms, was matron of honor and the bridesmaids were Mrs. William F. Whitla, of Sharon; Miss Barbara Lee, of Beverly, Mass.; Miss Jessie Marianne Thorp, of Edgewood, and Mrs. John B. Veach, of Oil City. Mary Stevenson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George K. Stevenson, as flower girl, wore yellow georgette. James Main Anderson, Jr., of Cincinnati, was his brother's best man and the ushers included George K. Stevenson, T. Reed Kennedy, Henry Fisher and George B. Moreland, Jr.

MRS. KENNETH S. CLAYLAND and Mrs. Millard F. Stewart will entertain with a bridge shower today in the Clayland home in Chislett street in honor of Miss Florence Barth, of Phillips avenue, whose marriage to John Anderson, of Cleveland, will be solemnized tomorrow afternoon in the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer.

THE marriage of Miss Marjorie Reno, daughter of Mrs. B. T. Reno, of Wilkinsburg, and Frederick A. H. Brandon, of Pittsburgh, was solemnized Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock in Emory Methodist Episcopal Church by the Rev. Dr. W. W. T. Duncan. A breakfast in the Reno home followed the ceremony. Once she couldn't hold a job....

—now the highest paid girl in the office

"I'M sorry, Miss Scott—but we just can't use you any more. It's all I can say."

Fired again! Why? They couldn't explain—and she couldn't guess.

But that very day she discovered the reason. The girls were whispering about it and she happened to overhear. "B.O."—body odor.

That's the last job Miss Scott ever lost. For since she learned what her handicap was and how to overcome it, her natural ability and charm—unspoiled by this unpardonable social error—have won her promotion after promotion—and a host of friends, besides.

No fear of body odor when pores are purified

Body odor is treacherous. We can't tell when we have it because our own sense of smell becomes deadened to familiar odors.

And no one is safe. We all must perspire to live. Even on a cool day, our pores give off as much as a quart of odor-causing waste.

Don't risk embarrassment—use the delightful, purifying toilet soap that millions enjoy—Lifebuoy. Its bland and abundant antiseptic lather deodorizes pores, giving bath-to-bath freshness and freedom from body odor.

Keeps skin clear

Lifebuoy keeps complexions fresh and clear, too—by gently purifying pores. It also guards health, removing germs as well as dirt.

ONE year ago, the "Ile de France" arrived on her maiden voyage, and was immediately hailed as "The Ambassador of the Future".

Her modern decoration and magnificence startled the travel world. Innovations that secured wide decks, and made possible the largest Dining Salon afloat, and the greatest number of cabins with bath on any liner, were particularly praised.

Again, the French Line takes the lead in inaugurating the first regular air mail service for the Transatlantic. Always on the alert for any new idea that will add to your comfort, the French Line will go further by providing conveniences beyond normal demand. "One thing my daughter must be told"

—Says a mother of today

The possibility of offending others is dreaded by thousands of women. Now a discovery which neutralizes odor in sanitary pads* frees them from this fear.

HOWEVER carefully she may guard and advise, no mother can protect her daughter from self-consciousness at certain times. If she fears that she is offending others, good times are impossible; light-heartedness flees. That is why mothers and daughters both learn with relief about the latest process perfected by Kotex scientists: Each Kotex sanitary pad is now treated to end all odor. The fears that were once inevitable now disappear.

Shaped to fit, too

Because corners of the pad are rounded and tapered, it may be worn without evidence under the most clinging gown.

There is none of that conspicuous bulkiness so often associated with old-fashioned methods. And you can adjust the filler, make it thinner, thicker, narrower—to suit your own special needs. It is easily disposed of, no laundering is necessary. A new process makes it softer than ever before.

Buy a box today . . . 45c for a box of twelve. On sale at all drug, dry goods and department stores; also, through vending cabinets in rest-rooms.

Deodorizes . . . and 4 other important features:

1—Softer gauze ends chafing; pliable filler absorbs as no other substance can;
2—Corners are rounded and tapered; no evidence of sanitary protection under any gown;
3—Deodorizes—safely, thoroughly, by a new and exclusive patented process;
4—Adjust it to your needs; fillers may be made thinner, thicker, narrower as required;
and
5—It is easily disposed of; no unpleasant laundry.

*Kotex is the only sanitary pad that deodorizes by patented process. (Patent No. 1,670,587, granted May 22, 1928.)

H. L. Mason, Jr., chairman of the executive committee, has been appointed vice-chairman in charge of a division of men's teams.

An executive committee composed of the following was named to direct the appeal: W. G. Costin, J. E. Lewis, E. W. Mudge, W. C. Robinson, J. Frederic Byers, F. C. Holdship, Dr. Alexander and Mr. Mason.

Appointment of Mr. Lewis as chairman of a group of 35 men's teams comprising members of the board and their friends, also was announced. The other two men's division heads who will serve under the leadership of Mr. Mason, are Dr. James P. McKelvy and Public Works Director E. G. Lang. Dr. McKelvy will have 20 teams made up of staff members and their friends, while Director Lang, a member of the hospital board, will have charge of activities on the North Side.

It also was announced that T. A. McGinley, of the Duff Manufacturing Company, will serve as chairman of the industrial division on the North Side, under E. W. Mudge, head of the group on general industries.

Plans for the new structure involve building of a 15-story hospital with a capacity of 550 beds, to be located on a three-acre tract on North avenue, facing the park, running back to Hemlock street between Porterfield street and Esplanade street.

It will have more rooms for private and semi-private patients; finer public wards; an out-patient department capable of handling 100,000 visits a year; ample quarters for the specialties of medicine; a modern emergency department, and space sufficient for all operating and administration work.

The present hospital, of 40 beds, was established in 1904. Its work since that time has practically trebled owing to the growth of population in the tributary area.

The building fund is being actively participated in by members of the staff, the nurses' alumoe and the Women's Auxiliary, all of which will have groups of teams in the organization.

Resolutions of sympathy at the death Tuesday of the Rev. Thomas Devlin, pastor of St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church, were passed yesterday at a luncheon of the board of directors of the Allegheny General Hospital, held in the Union Club.

wash day freedom—with the new wringerless easy washer

A good electric washer—and dryer—is just about essential in the modern American home—for there drudgery has no place. And anything short of the best means a good idea only half completed—a wise investment opportunity not fully carried out.

The Easy Washer has marked advantages—definite not theoretical — it washes and damp-dries your clothes as gently as your own careful hands — and more thoroughly.

No wringing to do—water is lifted and emptied for you—washes and damp-dries at the same time. No broken buttons — less sewing—no deep wrinkles—easier ironing. And positively safe—nowhere a finger can get caught.

Just move a little lever and inside of three minutes the full batch of clothes is dry enough to hang out—all evenly damp—so little water in the fabric that clothes hung indoors will not drip. Meanwhile another batch is washing—time cut in half.

The investment price is $175—consider it as spread over the years—use time payment at slight additional cost if you prefer.

The Prince of Wales — His Story.

Sees Unusual Sights and Is Given Many Receptions During African Tour

EDWARD P.
By WALTER and LEONARD TOWNSEND

CHAPTER XX.

NO Royal Prince had been such a globe-trotter as the Prince of Wales. He will never rest content until he has visited every country of interest—especially every part of the British Empire.

Having visited Canada, America, Australia, India, the East and most continental countries, western South Africa now claimed the Prince's attention. The Prince's "globe-trotting" were ambassadorial missions carried out with a strict eye on this essential. He did more than his duty, for he carried his mission in a human way right amongst the individual people with whom he came into contact.

PRINCE OF WALES

On March 28, 1925, the African tour began on H. M. S. Repulse. After a pleasant voyage the Prince landed at Bathurst.

The reception at Gambia augured well for a successful tour. Unlike the natives of India the temperament of the South African tribes did not open up the difficulties of individual and mass approach which characterized the Indian tour.

The chiefs of all the neighboring tribes had gathered in Gambia to greet "King Piccin," as the Prince of Wales was known to the black men.

Accompanied by many of these chiefs, the Prince was conducted up the Rokelle River to the Sierra Leonian Peninsula.

The natives marked the occasion of their meetings with the Prince by wearing their "best" clothes; some wore top silk hats and lion cloths, while others adorned themselves in peculiar uniforms. The effect was bizarre in the extreme.

The Prince received many peculiar presents from the chiefs at the various palavas. At Accra, on the Gold Coast, where the Prince baptized the college of Achimota, half the tribes of the West Coast assembled to pay tribute. At Nigeria there was a plague of smallpox, but the Prince landed at Iddo Island. A feature of his landing was a great shout which continued for half an hour.

A 700-mile journey brought the Prince to Karno, commercial center of West Soudan, where a durbar was held attended by 20,000 riders under the Moslem chieftains of Northern Nigeria. Following custom, the Prince raised his clenched fist in acknowledgment of the shouts of welcome.

In Karno while walking on the street, his highness stumbled on the corpse of a native. The native police officer told the Prince that it was the body of a thief who had been killed in self-defense by his officers. Anxiously he explained that he had not had time to inspect the corpse so far because he wished to watch the Prince play polo!

At Lagos the Prince laid the foundation stone of the cathedral where he suffered some amusing embarrassments by the fact that a great number of black children would not be satisfied until they had seen for themselves the Royal Pavilion.

At Capetown the Prince was received by the Earl of Athlone, the Governor General, and also met Gen. Smuts. Dense crowds including Dutch annd English, had turned out to see their distinguished visitor and the Prince, despite his noted dislike of the instrument, had to use a microphone so that his words might penetrate as far as possible into the enormous crowds.

University students were busy with their "rags;" cycling races were instituted, and a magnificent state ball was one of the features of the visit. His Royal Highness is an enthusiastic and expert dancer, and he was able to infuse into these somewhat awesome functions a right amount of youthful camaraderie and enjoyment which was wholly delightful. During his stay at Capetown, the Prince was elected chancellor of the University of Capetown and was honored by the degree of Doctor of Laws.

Ends Bad Feeling

The naval station of Simon's Town was visited. The Prince inspected the docks and part of the fleet anchored in the bay. In the evening a magnificent banquet took place and the Prince delighted his listeners by speaking in the native language. Even the rabid republicans could not withstand this appeal to their friendliness, and much bad feeling dissolved like snow before the sun by the Prince's obvious and eager desire to co-operate with all classes of people.

Then he set off on a tour through the more isolated regions of Africa. In the lonely valleys and settlements where the Prince mixed with the Dutch-speaking Nationalists, the welcome, quite restrained, was none the less sincere.

At Stellenbosch a team of young rugby players (university students) drew an ancient carriage in which the Prince visited their college. The president of the students' council gave an address. He said:

"We like to see a man. . . . we know a man when we see one. Our presence here is intended as a tribute to your manliness, which the most persistent attempts of the whole world have not been able to spoil. This is, however, not the only reason for our enthusiasm over your visit. Next to a real man there is nothing we love better than a real sportsman, no matter for what side he happens to be playing, and it is a special pleasure to us to welcome here today one of the finest and most daring sportsmen of the British Isles. . . ."

The Mayor of Outshoorn addressed the Prince as follows:

"This visit will do much to create in the people of South Africa a more powerful sentiment of attachment to the crown which has fostered liberty and further the cause of independence."

From Grahamstown, where he was kidnaped and carried to Rhodes University to spend a youthfully enjoyable hour, the Prince traveled to Kowie West. Here he played 45 holes of golf that day.

The Prince's staff remonstrated at such "energetic" rests, but the Prince knew his own constitution better than physicians. He had never felt more fit in his life.

At one indaba (parade) the Prince and his staff were the only Europeans present. There was no mistaking the eager enthusiasm and pleasure of the natives at thus segregating him. One stout chieftain gravely sat with a pompous smile on his features attired in a second-hand bishop's hat and colored leather leggings.

The prince wore many types of

ZIEGFELD PAYS FINE AS RUM RUNNER

International News Service.

ROUSES POINT, N. Y., Sept. 13.—Uncle Sam was $614 richer today because of fines imposed on Flo Ziegfeld, New York theatrical producer, and Dr. Jerome Wagner, of New York, for attempting to bring liquor from Canada into the United States.

Ziegfeld and Dr. Wagner were routed from their berths in a private car by customs collectors when they reached this village on their way from Montreal.

After searching the car, the federal officials reported they found 104 bottles of liquor, several bottles of wine and 42 bottles of Canadian ale. Ziegfeld and Dr. Wagner paid the fine without protest, customs collectors said.

The private car, Roamer, in which Ziegfeld and Dr. Wagner were riding is owned by J. L. R. Replogle, of Warren, Pa., president of the Replogle Steel Company and a director of the Wabash Railroad. He and Mrs. Replogle were aboard the car, but they disclaimed knowledge of the liquor, federal officials said.

The party was en route from Lac Edouard, Quebec, to New York. Deputy Collector George B. Warner, who boarded the train on the Canadian side of the border, reported that when he inquired if there was any liquor in the private car Dr. Wagner told him there was only a few bottles of beer.

After the train reach this village, the private car was searched by customs men, headed by Collector Roy L. Delano. Delano reported that he found the liquor secreted in various parts of the car.

All occupants of the car were ordered to dress and were then taken to the Customs House where the fine was imposed by Collector Delano.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

BY HAVEY J. BOYLE

THERE are certain spirits who get a great spiritual glow over being falsely accused We suppose there is some technical name for this, but we don't know it But there are other men, who don't get a very big kick out of a false accusation, which leads us to one of the interesting phases in connection with the Dapper murder story.

In telling it we want to be quite careful that we say nothing reproachful about the county detectives, who, under Chief George Murren, certainly have been, to our mind, working hard on the case. But for the grim background of the thing, the story could be handled a little more lightly.

The description of the murderer said he had reddish hair and was tall. There are many red-haired men who are also tall and one such was only mildly interested when he ran into a county detective who said: "Drop into the office." Knowing the detective in question the red-haired man obliged. He made himself comfortable on a chair, wondering just what could be on tap.

"HOW are you doing, Red?"

"Pretty good," said Red, still speculating.

"Where have you been lately?"

"Oh, round here most of the time. I was in Atlantic City for a short vacation, but most of the time just knocking around here."

"Say, Red, what do you know about the Dapper murder?"

"That was an awful thing, wasn't it?" replied Red, still getting no connection, and wondering whether the conversation would stay on this grim subject or possibly turn to something lighter, less unpleasant.

"You were away when that happened?"

And then Red began putting two and two together and found himself being ever so gently hooked up in a bad mess.

A less philosophical man might have been worked up about the thing, but Red understood that detectives on a hard case must work many leads. He obliged when the detectives asked him to ride out to Carrick to be sized up by the only man who has given a complete description of the murderer.

"Is this the man you saw that night?" the witness was asked.

"Heavens, no," said the witness, "I've known this fellow for 20 years."

"All right, Red," said the detectives, "you can go now."

And now Red still scratches his red head, cogitating his recent predicament.

MAYBE, the detectives, too, had a quiet laugh over the look on Red's face when he first discovered that he was being linked up with one of the strangest crimes in the history of the county.

The story might have been told in an unsympathetic manner, but that the detectives are taking every possible chance, no matter how remote, to unravel the mystery, is, it seems here, a boost for them. As for Red, well that was just a bit of bad luck that he happened to be tall and red-headed.

* * *

PERSONALLY, we are glad the description didn't say the fugitive had a long neck and wore glasses.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Sept. 13.

Been up to the hospital in New London, Conn., to see Fred Stone. He was hurt just as bad as reported at the time, but is coming along great.

If the world could see what that man is recovering from it would be worth the accident, just to prove to people what clean living and physical fitness will do for you when you really need 'em.

Anxious to see the Argentine-United States polo championship. Saw this week's United States team play. But haven't seen next week's team in action.

Our DANCING DAUGHTERS

Benny Is Puzzled as to What Type of a Girl Diana Rand Is

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

On his first day in Manor Park, where he is to apply the business methods learned in college, Benjamin Carrington Black has occasion to observe three of the suburban town's most alluring examples of femininity. Unnoticed by men, he sees Diana Rand—nineteen and pretty, enter a jewelry store with her friend, Beatrice Sheldon, whose trailing dress is reminiscent of the Gay Nineties. In the store Diana and Bea encounter Ann Evarts, a trim, petite person. Ann in Diana's roadster sees Noddy and Toddy and Norman Gregory and leaves Diana and Beatrice to join them. Bea is furious as she and Diana drive away. She is madly in love with Gregory. Norman hears about Benny being in Manor Park and looks him up. He locates him and invites him to a party at the Yacht Club. He consents to go. Bea and her brother, Freddie, prepare for the party and before leaving their parents warn them to behave like "Sheldons." Freddie calls for Ann, whose mother had just told her she must marry soon or go to work. Diana and her friends meet Benny at the party. It is a gay affair, with Diana being the life of it. Benny is fascinated by the quiet Ann, who makes believe that she does not like "wild" parties.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

THERE was the moment after Ann had gone and the crowd was dancing when Diana had come to the corner and thrown herself on a divan. He had sat beside her, accepting what he considered a gesture of invitation. "Do you," she had asked him, "notice the yearning expression in my girlish countenance?" And she had made her eyes very wistful, pursed her lips—what was it she had reminded him of then? Ann? Why, of course—she was imitating Ann! Though he hadn't thought of it at the time—only that she wished him to kiss her, especially when she began "I'm dying for—" and he had leaned down, tremendously attracted. But she had finished, "For a cigaret!" and jerked her head back. Playing with him, the little imp!

What sort of girl was Diana Rand?

Benny Black kept asking himself this throughout the next day—and found himself marking the bright new desk blotter his secretary had spread before him with more or less convincing sketches of tiny, arched feet, adding Mercury wings to the heels.

Once he tried to picture Ann's dainty slippers but he could not make them seem real. Those were just pencil lines, accurate perhaps but without life, while Diana's seemed to dance before him in a merry, provocative way.

A bit confused, uncertain about his own state of mind, Benny kept to himself for a time, failing to make good his promise to call on Ann, avoiding the crowd he had met at the Yacht Club ball.

Then Jeremiah Sheldon, whose bank took care of the factory payroll, invited him to dinner and the interest Benny felt in the long drawn out gloomy occasion so appalled him that he telephoned Norman Gregory and asked for a guest membership at the club.

"No use dropping into such a rut," he told himself. "'All work and no play'—a fool thing. Go there for a swim now and then; no girl question to complicate that."

But there was. For on the very first morning Benny Black stepped upon the Yacht Club beach a sturdy little figure, bronzed of arms and shoulders and gay in scarlet trunks and jersey floated lazily in from beyond the safety lines and called exultantly:

"Welcome to our river, slave. Race you to the float!"

They raced but it was Diana who touched the planking first. They sat in the morning sunshine, not talking much, enjoying the warm sweetness of early Summer. She gave him not flirting glances, no merry, verbal jabs; on this occasion she met him with such a take-it-for-granted friendliness that he was fascinated.

"That is what I was running away from," he thought. "Why she's straightforward as a man would be! A fine little pal—"

And he found her good-natured comradeship so pleasant that all his puzzlement vanished, all questions went out of his mind, and each day he looked forward eagerly to the next morning when he again might visit the beach and race the girl to the float; when they might sit sunning themselves, talking in understanding manner about nothing.

But the meetings could not long go unnoted in Manor Park. Inside a week Beatrice informed her friend that people were gossiping. And although Diana wrinkled her nose and maintained she did not care, the words would not sound whole-hearted.

For she knew that she did care enormously. Not for the gossip—that did not count. It was Benny Black she cared for. Deeply, recklessly, for all time. Diana Rand, untouched by a hundred flirtations, was in love at last!

Not that she wished this to be so. "Darn!" she would whisper to herself, thinking of it. "Oh, darn—why did I have to go and do that?"

And then she would vision the tall boy with his rudy mop windblown as he swung in a long, clean curve from the springboard — remember his flashing smile, the yellow flecks in his eyes as he came up to her through choppy waves, and her breath would catch. Dear—so dear! And he cared not at all for her. Or if he did a tiny bit he wouldn't know it—wouldn't like it anyway. Interested only in business he told her once, which would mean that he was not interested in love . . .

Because she began to feel a little ache at her heart sometimes, Diana plunged into wilder gayety, dancing more madly than ever she had done, laughing a great deal, becoming a small whirlwind of activity, leader in every madcap adventure of her crowd.

He heard about it finally — heard with surprise and a sense of having been let down by her—and ventured to remonstrate.

"You crazy kids! Spending yourselves in the glitter — can't you think of anything but a good time?"

"That for you, old Blue Nose!" And she snapped her fingers at him, laughing in his face. "Why don't you come out and play with us? Who told you it was any fun being a stick-in-the-mud?"

He turned away scowling, and once again began to ask himself what sort of girl was this Diana Rand. The square little pal he knew or—well——. A chap would be justified in believing almost anything of her and it was quite plain she would not mind . . .

It was at this point that Hanna Evart, having made a study of Benny Black's comings and goings, dressed her daughter in virginal white and sent her out to meet him—accidentally, of course—as he left the factory one afternoon.

CHAPTER X.

LURED by Ann's wistfulness, Benny Black paid a tentative, rather inquiring call or two at the apartment hotel, wholly unconscious of the bustle and preparation which preceded each visit.

For Hanna was determined that nothing should be left undone in making sure of what she saw as the last of their chances for comfortable living and position. Accordingly she bribed a maid to open the sitting room of an unoccupied suite adjoining their apartment and if this were rather bare of the home look, at least it permitted Ann and herself to receive the visitor in privacy. Furthermore, she could—and did—explain that they were temporary residents here, looking about for the right sort of home.

Upon each occasion she managed the adoring mother attitude, impressing upon the young man the privilege accorded him in calling upon her "baby girl" and deouncing scornfully, though without suspicious emphasis, the manner in which young folk ran wild in a graceless age. Also she excused herself to prepare lemonade, leaving Ann and the visitor alone together for a rather longish hour.

It occurred to Benny toward the close of the second call that he should offer something of hospitality in return and he invited mother and daughter to dine at the Yacht Club the following Sunday evening.

Hanna accepted for them both, not too eagerly. But when Sunday evening came she had discovered that a previous engagement must be filled—so she said—and sent the "children" out alone, Ann demure and apparently excited as a child at a first party, Benny vaguely uneasy but nevertheless an admiring and attentive host.

The two lingered a long time over the table and finally the orchestra ended the regular Sunday evening concert and swung into dance music. And Shortly Beatrice and Norman appeared with Freddie, Noddy and Toddy, and Diana coming in last of all.

She stopped just inside the door, did Diana, while her eyes flew to Benny and Ann—to a picture of comfortable intimacy at a secluded table; to Ann's little hand lying close to Benny's, her trustful, cuddling pose. She gave them a cool bit of nod and turned her back. But all her reveling of the past few weeks was as nothing as compared with the abandon which caught her now; she was like a thin, burning flame darting everywhere, the center of laughter, song and noise, inciting to wilder, madder merry-making than the clubhouse ever had known before.

Benny took Ann home as soon as he could manage, leaving her at the door—sending her in to a scene with Hanna though he did not know this. And he spent a restless night, arguing through the hours.

Diana Rand—what was the mystery of Diana Rand? Frank and friendly little pal he had met on the beach was she—or the creature whose ways were those of a harlot? Which was the real girl?

Why did the question disturb him, insist upon turning in his mind—turning and turning? What was it to him—what was Diana Rand to him? Why did he think of her so, keep seeing her little dancing feet—the level gray eyes—the red lips pursed in laughter, held up for his kiss?

Man Leads Dance Partner, Husband Should Lead in Home, Fay King

EVERY MARRIAGE IS A LITTLE TWO-PARTY EXPEDITION, AND THE HUSBAND IS THE RIGHTFUL LEADER!
IN A PURSUIT SO EXACTING AS MOUNTAIN CLIMBING, CHARGED WITH THE UNEXPECTED AND DEPENDENT UPON CONTINUOUS HARMONY OF ACTION FOR ITS ORDINARY PROGRESS, VOLUNTARY SUBORDINATION TO ONE LEADER IS ESSENTIAL!
THE GRACE AND PLEASURE OF DANCING IN NOT SO MUCH IN HOW WELL HE LEADS, BUT IN HOW WELL SHE FOLLOWS!
FAY-KING

By FAY KING

IN EVERY successful undertaking there must be one leader.

Those who willingly subordinate themselves and follow may be equally capable, and consulted at times, but for the good of all concerned, there must be one to whom the final word is left.

If two people in a rowboat insisted upon rowing in opposite directions it would be ridiculous, yet many married couples are doing just that thing figuratively speaking.

Some wives have such an exaggerated idea of independence and self expression that they will oppose their husbands' leadership in the home.

The home needs a captain as well as a ship, and the husband is the rightful leader!

I have never seen a woman who enjoys dancing dispute her partner's right to leadership!

Howard, 50, real estate operator and until recently a member of the Zoning Board of Appeals, was found dead in his auto, parked along a country road near the Cambria County Children's Home at Ebensburg. He had swallowed poison. Worry over financial matters is said to have prompted Howard to end his life. He leaves his widow and five children.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.

U.S. Senator from New York

Heart Lesion Cases Are Often Imagined

(Third Heart Article)

IN these articles about the heart, it is my purpose to show that you need not stay awake nights worrying over that faithful organ. Year in and year out it will go its way, serving you loyally and devotedly. Most of the cases of "heart lesion" are purely imaginary and have no existence outside the brain of the worried one.

Of course, there are real ailments and actual defects of this vital organ. One of them is called "cardiac insufficiency."

In simple language these big words are applied to a certain type of weak and unfit heart. It is a condition which renders the heart incapable of doing its full duty. It lacks the strength and vigor to serve the body as it is expected to do.

Having such a heart is a pretty serious thing. You can get along without an ear or a foot, or with an unfit hand. But to have an unfit heart lessens the usefulness and happiness of every minute of your life.

There can be no perfection of health in skin, or muscle, or stomach, or brain if the muscles of the heart are not strong and vigorous. There cannot be physical efficiency unless that vital organ forces the blood in a cleansing stream to every part of the body.

Our food cannot be utilized unless there is an abundant supply of oxygen. This element is carried into our lungs with the air we breathe. It passes through the thin walls of the air cells into the blood. There the oxygen combines with a chemical substance in the blood cells, a substance known as "hemoglobin."

The combination of the oxygen and hemoglobin makes a new substance, known to the scientists as "oxyhemoglobin." This vital product is carried to every part of the body and used where there is need for it.

The body has the power to store up certain substances which act as a sort of reserve. They can be called upon for service when needed. Fat is such a substance. But this is not the case with the oxyhemoglobin. It must be used immediately or the body has missed its opportunity. It passes a given point but once. If it is not taken up by the tissues which need it, they have no second chance at that particular cargo.

What is the function of the oxyhemoglobin? If the blood cells are not loaded with this precious material, there is nothing to do the cleansing and purifying work essential to health. Neither is there any oxygen to burn the food we eat and make it available for the upbuilding of the body. All these important things are done by the oxyhemoglobin.

Our individual welfare depends upon the unfailing activity of a strong heart. It must be a fit heart, a dependable heart, a well-developed muscular heart.

Such a heart sends the blood through the lungs. There it picks up its load of oxygen. This it carries everywhere, to the last cell and fiber of the body. It prepares the food for our use, supplies the energy, and disposes of the waste products.

We don't want cardiac insufficiency. We can have no "pep" or energy if we are so unfortunate.

Good food to supply the energy. Oxygen to make the food available to the body's use. Exercise to promote the circulation of the blood. These three things are vital to health. When they are supplied, the heart is likely to do its work in proper fashion. Then he will have cardiac sufficiency and good health as a natural result.

Tomorrow: Dr. Copeland continues this series on the heart.

Answers to Health Queries

P. D. Q. Q.—What is the cause of an unpleasant breath?

2.—What can be done for stomach noises?

3.—What causes canker sores in the mouth?

A.—Diseased tonsils, decayed teeth, intestinal disturbances, constipation or nasal catarrh may be responsible. Find the cause and the treatment will suggest itself.

2.—Proper diet and regular intestinal elimination will correct the trouble.

3.—This condition is usually due to acid in the system, caused by improper diet and constipation. This should be corrected.

J. M. Q.—Would a nervous condition caused rapid heart action and what would benefit it? Would faulty digestion be apt to cause this trouble? Have had a nervous shock.

A.—Nervousness and indigestion would both be apt to affect your heart action. First of all, clear up the nervousness and then the digestion will probably improve.

H. K. Q.—What is the cause of a bald spot the sixth of a 50-cent piece on the scalp of a young person? Apart from slight dandruff the hair is thick, glossy and healthy-looking.

A.—This condition may be due to alopecia areata.

"COULD SUCH THINGS BE?"

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

THIS is a facetious picture, meant to make you smile.

Meant to make you go back ten, twenty, thirty years, maybe—alack—more, to old snap-shots and tintypes of yourself and your crowd as you were then—"the glass of fashion and the mould of form!" and win a smile for yourself.

"On the Beach," 'way back in the early nineteen-hundreds, was a different picture from what "On the Beach" is now. If you are pretty high up in years you think, "could that be ME?" If you are a young whipper-snapper you give way to hysterics and murmur, "did anybody really ever go swimming in that?"

Pinstripe, caterpillar-like suits on the boys, down to the knees, with a smart sailor-like bell to the bottom of the shorts. Voluminous blouses—beruffled; voluminous panties, beruffled; the whole braided lavishly, for the "girls." And the roguish damsel topped by a Hindu-like effect that came of tying up her tremendous pompadour in a silk-scarf! Terrible—when dry. But in the ninth circle of unbelievable effects when WET!

That single-syllabled word CHANGE! How loaded with thoughts. Why—I can remember when girls, some of the most chic, "went in" in corsets. And the most daring sneaked into the sea in what they called their "under-piece"—AT NIGHT . . . Well, well!

A facetious picture—but with a serious thought if you care to think it. Smiling back at what to us are these "funny," and what to those who wore them were these "charming" sea-togs, we think of the word that we are all uneasy of, that most of us despise, and that is the surest comer in the world—CHANGE. Old clothes were once the delight of another age's hearts. Old loves were once to us undying. We smile at old clothes. We marvel at the fascination of old loves—and are sometimes able to SMILE at them also. But change has made the world rich. Change has made the head wiser and richer.

And if you still dread it—remember that "all things change save GOD!" —NELL BRINKLEY.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Offers Her Assistance to Princess Olina

I SMILED down indulgently at Princess Olina of Transvania when she asked me if I felt it my duty to write to her mother of her whereabouts.

"Of course not," I said. "I am not your guardian, and have not the slightest responsibility for your actions. If your mother had no knowledge of your safety, I might feel the duty of one mother to another to relieve here anxiety, but you said—"

"She has the assurance in my own handwriting that I am safe and well," the princess interrupted.

"Then the rest of the situation between you and your family is strictly your own affair, and neither I nor anyone else will meddle with it," I assured her. "But there is something in which I feel I ought to meddle as a neighbor and friend."

Her eyes widened with sudden fear.

"What do you mean?" she asked.

I put my hand over hers.

"It does not take very keen eyes, my child," I said slowly, "to see that you are frightened over something which you are keeping to yourself. Indeed you have just spoken of something which is 'terrifying' you. Can you not tell me of it? Is there any danger threatening you?"

Her lips parted, trembling on the verge of speech, and I waited tensely for the explanation of the mystery of the farmhouse which I was sure she meant to give me. But the next second her lovely quivering lips closed into a thin taut line, and she shook her head, while an appeal for my forbearance came into her big pansy eyes. I pressed her hand reassuringly, and forced a nonchalant smile to my lips for I saw that some hidden compulsion was on her which I must use adroitness in fathoming. Nothing could be gained by pressing her.

"Just as you say, my dear," I told her, rising from my chair. "But please remember that I am at your service at any hour of the day or night, whether you wish to give me your confidence or not."

"Oh! I want to so much," she exclaimed, "but I cannot—must not—yet."

"Whenever you wish to see me, have Mrs. Ticer telephone me, and I will come right over," I told her, "but before I go I want to make sure of one thing. What precaution have you here against burglars or other maurauders? You are reputed to be wealthy, you know, and that is always a temptation to thieves. Who is in the house at night? Have you bars on the lower windows?"

"No, there are no bars," she said, "but there are good locks on all the doors and windows. Henry sees to the locking-up every night, and now that Anna is so ill, Jerry Ticer is to sleep here at night, so that I have a messenger handy."

Upon my lips trembled the comment that Mrs. Ticer would be a far better protector than either her husband or her son, neither of whom was noted for his valor, but I did not utter it. Instead I glanced at the big window of her room, at the side of which a thick wistaria vine climbed up to a secure anchorage on the roof.

"I don't want to frighten you," I said uneasily, "but I wish you had bars on this window, at least."

"I'll have them put on tomorrow," she said, "and on every other window which could be entered. Until then and afterward also, I have something better than bars."

She gave a low whistle, there was a swift rush outside the open door and the next instant Fedor, her beautiful wolf-hound, bounded into the room, and coming to the side of the bed, stood poised, alertly looking from his mistress to me. I had the uncomfortable feeling that the powerful animal only needed his young mistress' word to spring at my throat.

"You see!" she said proudly. "I need no other protector than Fedor. He would tear to pieces anyone who put his hand on me."

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

YOU SEE, IT'S LIKE THIS—

MONEY is not the only thing that is unequally distributed in this world. There are husbands, beauty, freckles and FAT!

Theoretically a man dislikes a vain, frivolous woman around the office. So much so that he feels he ought to take her out to lunch to tell her about it.

Probably nature put the most vitamins in spinach, carrots and cod liver oil instead of in honey and lobster salad for the same reason that she put most of the virtues in the least attractive women and the least interesting men.

It is not money, but too MUCH or too LITTLE of it, that is the root of all matrimonial evils.

A man never can understand why a woman insists on being "the whole show" in his life—the theme, the climax, the chorus and the finale—instead of being delighted to be just one of its little "variations."

HELEN ROWLAND

A woman always fancies that when a man loses his head he has lost his heart as well—until she finds it in perfect running order at the sight of a newer and prettier woman.

The average man just carelessly parks his affections for a little while and then is astonished to discover what a lot of ingenuity it requires to pull out of the entanglement without nicking a woman's heart or denting her vanity.

If the average woman took the time to use all the new "labor-saving" devices her husband brings home she'd probably be too tired to open a can.

• • •

A man used to want a wife full of visions and virtues—but now he appears to prefer one full of vim, vigor and vitamins.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, September 14

THE sidereal operations for this day make for many openings and prospects for advancement and preferment, especially for those in the employment of others. But this benefic rule may be jeopardized by an ill-controlled urge to boldness and rashness, in which the proffered opportunities may be nullified by clamor and turbulence. With calmness and self-possession many benefits may be secured, but be wary as to speculation and extravagance. Social and domestic matters flourish.

Those whose birthday it is may expect many opportunities and advantages during the year, but these should not be negatived by a tendency to rash and impetuous conduct. Calmness and deliberation as well as a careful watch of finances may wrest good fortune and happiness from conflicting conditions. A child born on this day may have many fine qualities and talents making for success, but it will require early training and discipline to restrain an indulgent and tempestuous nature.

Get substantial worth, boldness gilds finely and will set it forth.—HERBERT.

New Sports Jewelry

A new collection of sports jewelry fashioned of wood is interesting. Flat, triangular pieces, squares or lozenge and peg shapes are used in either natural polished wood or in combinations as light blue and silver, jade and mulberry, and navy blue and natural beige.

The most important reason for cleaning your teeth is to neutralize the acids that cause decay and gum irritations. These acids form in pits on the grinding surfaces of your teeth and at The Danger Line, the crevices where teeth and gums meet. No tooth-brush can reach all these pits and crevices. It follows, that unless your dentifrice neutralizes these acids they continue to attack your teeth and gums regardless of your brushing.

That is why millions of people are turning to Squibb's Dental Cream, made with more than 50 per cent of Squibb's Milk of Magnesia. When you brush your teeth with Squibb's Dental Cream, tiny particles of Squibb's Milk of Magnesia get into all these remote pits and crevices and neutralize the acids. Of course, Squibb's Dental Cream cleans beautifully and is safe to use in the most tender mouth. Only 40 cents for a large tube.

The Prince of Wales
His Story

dress during his visit, but perhaps his red tunic of the Welsh Guards was the most popular.

After visiting Queenstown, Molteno and Burghersdorp the Prince of Wales left the Cape Province for the Free State Province, and the first town he visited was Jagersfontein.

Bloemfontein had made special preparations. A deputation of more than a thousand Boers met him on the way, and the Prince rode into the town at the head of the triumphant procession. The reception he immediately received was both marvelous and inspiring. More so because it came from Boers and Britons, who not so many years before had been the worst of enemies.

Superstitious Natives

In Maseru the Prince was both amused and interested in the superstition of the natives. A grand Durbar had been planned to take place, but owing to the unfavorable weather arrangements had to be canceled. The disappointment of the natives, however, was dispelled by their joy in the belief that the Prince had brought with him the much needed rain for their crops. Their joy was even greater when, the following day, the weather brightened and the procession was able to proceed. The white man, in his benevolence, had supplied the much needed rain yet had not robbed them of their eagerly anticipated fete.

The only incident which cast a gloom over the exhilarating pleasure of the Prince's African travels was the hour he spent at the Leper Colony at Basuto. His sadness, however, was the joy of the 400 wretched sufferers, who were gratified at his sympathetic thoughtfulness.

At Natal the Prince inspected the old battlefields and at Ladysmith the siege positions. At Durban the Prince had a strenuous time. A civic banquet, a congregation of over 15,000 school children, an inspection of 23,000 Natal Indians, a Zulu parade, a greeting of 3,000 ex-service men, and then the opening of the new graving dock specially called after him. Pietermaritzberg, Newcastle, Dundee, Vryheid all contributed to give the Prince the welcome he so richly deserved. In the Transvaal the Afrikanders traveled great distances to meet the Prince and some old veterans were given the chance to each speak to the Prince. Some expressed doubt as to his identity. "I'm your man," Prince Edward said, smiling, and held out his hand.

Long, arduous motor journeys carried the Prince through the lonely spaces of the Transvaal, where he met personally the outlying citizens and farmers. The Prince spent his thirty-first birthday in Johannesburg, and he received a terrific welcome. "The greatest lad we've ever had!" was the greeting he received wherever he went.

The Prince visited the tomb of Rhodes, and throughout Rhodesia, as was expected, received an immense welcome. Back to the Cape the Prince stayed at Kimberley, where he was shown a treasure chamber of diamonds in the De Beers office and afterwards descended into a mine. The Prince then boarded the Repulse once more and visited St. Helena, where he planted an olive tree near Napoleon's tomb.

SPORT COMMENT
by JAMES J. LONG

One of Bishop's Rare Homers Keeps Alive Spark of Pennant Hope for Macks—Third Fighter Adopts Name of Former Champion Corbett—Yanks May Have Pennock's Services on Trip.

MAKING home runs has not been the specialty of Max Bishop, the Athletics' second sacker. He went through the entire seasons of 1926 and 1927 without connecting for a four-baser, and prior to the ninth inning of yesterday's game in New York he had been credited with only 11 homers during his five years in the big show. This season he had made five, all except one of them having been poled against St. Louis.

Max Bishop.

But Max certainly timed one of his rare round-trippers so that it would do the greatest amount of good, his homer in the ninth yesterday giving the A's their only victory in the four-game series with the Yankees and saving them from being blown completely out of the American League pennant race.

IN THE end, perhaps, Bishop's circuit slam may avail the Mackmen naught as far as the flag is concerned, but for the time being it leaves them with at least a spark of championship hope.

If the Philadelphia contenders had lost again yesterday, giving New York a clean sweep, they would now be three and a half games from the top, and in event of the Yanks winning only eight of their 15 remaining contests it would have been necessary for the Macks to win 12 of their 14 remaining encounters in order to beat them out.

AS IT is, the victory resulting from Bishop's home run leaves his club only a game and a half behind the Gothamites. The Yanks have one more to play than the Athletics, and if they win that they can increase their lead to two lengths.

Even that is quite an advantage in view of the nearness of the finish, for if the Yanks win just eight out of 15 the A's must win 10 out of 14 to finish in front. But at least there is an outside fighting chance that would not exist today if yesterday's game had been lost.

THE most pleasing feature of the Athletics' victory, in the eyes of their followers, was the evidence it gave that those three straight defeats did not ruin the morale of the team nor take the fight out of it. The Quaker City ballers once more came from behind and twice forged to the front after being tied, indicating that they are constructed of the right stuff and are not going to do a fold-up. All of which presages that while the Yanks will have the pennant odds in their favor when the two teams begin the final Western trip on Saturday, they are not going to get away with the flag without a stiff argument.

YOUNG CORBETT, Italian southpaw fistic sensation of Fresno, Cal., who once made Pittsburgh his home, and who makes his Eastern debut as a welterweight championship contender in a 12-round bout with Sergt. Sammy Baker in New York tonight, is the third fighter to adopt the name of Jim Corbett, former heavyweight champion.

The first was George Greene, of San Francisco, who was prominent in the welterweight and middleweight classes from 1889 to 1899. He never won a title, but he knocked out such men as Owen Ziegler, Willie Lewis, Shadow Maher, Frank McConnell, Frank Kelly and Charley Goff, and won decisions over Dan Creedon, Charley McKeever, Tom Tracy and others.

GREENE pressed Mysterious Billy Smith before the latter gained the verdict over him in 25 rounds, and he went 18 rounds each with Joe Wolcott and Tommy Ryan before they put him away.

Bill Regan.

The second Young Corbett became a champion. He was William H. Rothwell, of Denver, whose ring career extended from 1897 to 1910. In 1901, besides beating George Dixon, Joe Bernstein and Kid Broad, he knocked out Eddie Santry in two rounds and Oscar Gardner in six, and then, on November 28 of that year, amazed the fight world by knocking out the supposedly invincible Terry McGovern in two rounds and winning the featherweight championship.

ROTHWELL stopped McGovern again in 1903, this time in 11 rounds. In 1904 he outgrew the class, the limit of which was then 122 pounds. Later Abe Attell became recognized as the titleholder in spite of the fact that Jack McClelland, of Pittsburgh, beat him in 15 rounds at St. Louis on June 2, 1904.

YOUNG CORBETT No. 2 made one appearance in this city, meeting Mull Bowser, of Monaca, in a six-round no-decision bout in Lawrenceville on February 9, 1909.

On that occasion, Rothwell introduced in these parts the stunt of having a tank of oxygen in a fighter's corner.

Bucs, Red Sox Play Exhibition Game

THE closing act of the 1928 baseball season in Pittsburgh will begin this afternoon with the appearance of the Boston American League Club in an exhibition game against the Pirates at Forbes Field. Play will start at 3:30 o'clock.

The Pittsburgh club's home schedule for the year will be concluded with single games tomorrow and Saturday, when the Cincinnati team will be the visiting attraction. The Pirates then will go East to finish the season on the road.

Today's exhibition event marks the first time a Boston American League team has played here in 25 years, or since the world series of 1903.

Manager Bush will start his regular club this afternoon, with Blankenship and Tutwiler doing the pitching and John O'Connell, the Verona boy, behind the bat. Bill Regan, of Brookline, will be at second base for the Red Sox. The probable lineup:

STATE GRIDDERS LACK WEIGHT

NITTANY ELEVEN FAST, LIGHT

(NOTE—This is the fifth of a series of stories by Jess Carver reviewing the football prospects of the leading colleges and universities of the Tri-State district. St. Vincent's College will be reviewed Saturday and the University of Pittsburgh Sunday.)

By JESS M. CARVER,
Staff Correspondent of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Sept. 13. — Under the smoky blue shadow of old Mt. Nittany, the pile that has looked down for decade after decade on the ever changing athletic fortunes of Penn State College, Hugo Bezdek and his staff of assistants are building the 1928 model Nittany Lion football team, hoping and expecting it is somewhat better and certainly no worse than the general run of Penn State teams have been in the past.

Coach Hugo, whose shock of fast-whitening hair is pleasurably familiar to football folks of the entire East, is viewing the gridiron campaign with an air of fair confidence. Bez does not expect a world-beating eleven, nor does he anticipate a season filled with disappointments.

BEZDEK HOPEFUL

"With fair prospects, any coach can expect a 50-50 break in wins and losses, and we have fair material. Perhaps we have had better and certainly we have had worse." That is Bez's view.

The thing that concerns Pittsburgh folks with relation to Penn State is the chances of the Lions with Pitt in the annual Thanksgiving Day fray in Pittsburgh.

An odd psychology has been built up for that game, one that is almost always fatal to State hopes. State teams play like tyros in Pittsburgh; how often have you seen it fail? But put a State team on Franklin Field in Philadelphia and you will see a team as different as night is from day.

Bezdek and his assistants have as yet no plans formed for the combating of this unfortunate psychology, but they hope, as in previous years, to get away from it, and to bring their men to the point of perfection, more mental than physical, that will enable them to show their true power in meeting the Panthers.

This 1928 State football team is going to be a light one, and it is going to be a generally inexperienced one. Gaping holes were made in both the line and backfield by graduation; holes that possibly will not be filled in a single season. Those left from the 1927 team, the Hamas, the Delps, the Greenshields, Millers and others, are far from beefy players, and if Bezdek can put a team on the field that will strike an average of 175 pounds, he will be fortunate. From what I have seen of Tri-State district teams so far this year, I think State has the lightest squad in the section, and aside from Carnegie Tech, they are all lacking in averdupois.

MANY HOLES TO FILL

Bezdek is being assisted by a fine staff of coaches. For the line he has Larry Conover, Darragh and Griffith. Burk M. (Dutch) Herman and Bob Higgins are aiding in the instruction of the backs and ends. Dutch will also coach the Freshman team, as per usual.

From last year's team, Bez lost

Panccion formerly played guard, but has been shifted to tackle to take the place of Capt. Greenshields, who is in the hospital suffering from bronchial pneumonia and likely will be out of the game for at least six weeks. Panccion is a strong defensive player.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The Yankees must win or lose their pennant somewhere out there in the inimical confines of the alien Hinterland.

The Athletics came back strong yesterday—came back with a fighting spirit born of desperation, and back of the flapping left arm of Rube Walberg, annexed the final game of the series.

As games go, yesterday's was just as thrilling, just as dramatic, just as tense and just as bombastic as three which preceded it. Only in the ultimate score was there any difference. And that final run was in doubt until Max Bishop, little Athletic lead-off man, hoisted one of Hoyt's fast balls into the right field bleachers for a home run.

YANKS HEAD WEST

It was the last appearance of the Yankees at home. Today they're on their way to St. Louis, where on Saturday they open a four-game series to inaugurate their final swing through the West.

They have 15 games to play. The Athletics have 13. Four of the Yankee games are in St. Louis; three are in Chicago; three in Cleveland and five in Detroit.

The Athletics have three each in Cleveland, Detroit and St. Louis, and four in Chicago. It is against these clubs that the ultimate victory must be won, the final battle waged.

PERKINS, VOIGT IN FRONT

NEWTON, Mass., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Shattering the tournament record with a sensational 70, two under par, Bobby Jones crushed one-half of the British threat in the national amateur golf championship today when he led John B. Beck, of London, by the overwhelming margin of 12 up at the end of the first 18 holes of their 36-hole third-round match.

Jones, with the best game he has shown so far in defense of his title, swamped the Briton with an avalanche of par or subpar golf. He led six up at the turn and doubled this margin coming in. Beck failed to win a single hole.

At the rate he was going Jones seemed certain to break all records for decisive defeats in a National Amateur tournament. The highest previous margin of victory was that of Jerome Travers, who defeated the late George A. Crump, 14 and 13, in the first round at Detroit in 1915.

The other three matches all were close and hard-fought. T. P. (Phil) Perkins, the British champion, had to shoot par golf, 72, to finish the first half of the match one up on John Dawson, Chicago. George Voigt, of New York, the medalist, made a strong finish to become 3 up on Dr. Oscar F. Willing, of Portland, Ore., while Harrison R. (Jimmy) Johnston, of St. Paul, was only one up on Phillips Finlay, Boston, in the remaining match.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

by HARRY KECK
SPORTS EDITOR

SOME observations on current events in Sportdom: The only bout Young Corbett ever lost was to Jack McCarty, of Chicago. That was three years ago. McCarty recently lost to Jack Zivic at Chicago and then Corbett defeated Zivic on the Coast and followed this up with a knockout victory over Nick Testo. Tonight, Corbett makes his Eastern debut against Sergt. Sammy Baker in Madison Square Garden, New York. Corbett is a southpaw and a tough puncher. He plans to visit in Pittsburgh, his former home, after this battle.

The death of Sam Graham, local policeman-golfer, following his participation in the tug of war at the police games last Saturday, would appear to bear out the theories of doctors who tell us that violent exercise in middle life is dangerous. Graham was more athletic year in and year out than most of his fellow members of the force, yet the tug of war left him exhausted and collapse followed.

CONSIDER the case of Chip Helmick, star of the Fairmont club of the Middle Atlantic League, who, for the third successive year, has been voted the runner-up for the most valuable player prize in the circuit. That's consistency, and yet who wants to finish in the consolation berth each season?

The talk is going around town that it's all fixed for Roy Schooley to go back at the helm of the local hockey club this winter, after the mess that was made of affairs by those who tried to run the club last season. Schooley says he hasn't been approached on the matter yet. His return would be welcomed by the fans.

IT would seem, after all, that there are such things as jinxes. If there are not, how can one explain Henry Johnson's four victories over Lefty Grove, who has lost only seven games all season, and the Yankees' six victories in seven starts against Grove? And the Athletics' general inefficiency against the Yankees throughout the campaign?

Benny Leonard finally comes out with the flat statement, in a signed story, that the ring has seen the last of him as a boxer. He'll still keep his hand in the game, but not actively.

IF the Washington Senators drop Manager Bucky Harris after this season, sending him, along with Ossie Bluege, to Detroit in exchange for Gehringer, they will get the finest fielding second baseman in the American League through the deal. I saw Gehringer play in a recent game and the manner in which he ate up potential hits and broke up batting rallies constituted nothing short of grand larceny.

There may be sentiment in baseball, but it is hard to find. As the boy manager who led the Senators to two successive pennants in his first two seasons at the helm, back in 1924 and 1925, Bucky Harris was the apple of Clark Griffith's eye. Now that he has failed for three seasons to repeat, he has been reduced to the rank of merely trading material. If he goes to Detroit, it would not be surprising to see him succeed George Moriarity as manager of the Tigers, either next season or in 1930.

THE record of Young Corbett, of California, whose Eastern bow against Sergt. Sammy Baker tonight will be watched with considerable interest, shows 40 victories by the knockout route, 59 by decisions, five draws and one defeat. He has beaten Young Jack Thompson, knockerout of Champion Joe Dundee, and also fought a draw with the Negro lad.

The two most valuable home runs of the season unquestionably are Bob Meusel's cleanup wallop with the bases loaded in the second game of the Yankees' crucial series with the Athletics, Sunday, and Babe Ruth's grand slam in the eighth inning of the third game, Tuesday. There was pennant potency behind those biffs.

ROBERTI-GODFREY GO SLATED FOR OCTOBER 3

NEW YORK, Sept. 13. — (AP.) — Roberto Roberti, Italian giant, was matched yesterday to fight George Godfrey, massive Negro, in a 10-round match at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, October 3. They are the largest heavyweights in the ring today, Roberti scaling around 225 pounds and Godfrey 245 when in condition.

The winner will meet the best available opponent in the final major outdoor show of the season, October 12, at Ebbets Field.

Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight, has agreed to meet the winner in a set of bouts to be staged for the benefit of the Milk Fund, Italian Hospital, and Marshall-Stillman movement, if his injured knee has healed by that time.

JOHNNY DUNN BEATS TOMASKEY AT PITCAIRN

Johnny Dunn, of New Kensington, defeated Andy Tomosky, of Wilmerding, in an eight-round bout at the Pitcairn baseball field last night, held under the auspices of the P. R. R.

Andy Stahura, of Braddock, defeated Frankie Moran, of Homewood, 6 rounds; George Tomasky, of Trafford city, lost afour-round bout to Terry McManus, of Lawrenceville; Johnny Haggerty won over Bobby Burns, of Swissvale, in four rounds, and Bob Krate, of Homewood, defeated Pete Kuzma, of the South Side, in four rounds.

WOMEN'S TOURNEY NEARS FINAL

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

WHILE the first round of match play got under way at the Pittsburgh Field Club this morning, the fight for the women's Western Pennsylvania championship narrowed down at the Allegheny Country Club as the second round was reached. Yesterday's play in both tournaments brought out some interesting results.

At the Pittsburgh Field Club, J. Lang Hukill, Jr., of the Shannopin Country Club, proved medalist in a field of almost 300 when his 78, a pair of 39's, barely nosed Joe Wells, of East Liverpool, out of the honor—in fact, Wells took 79. They were the only two to break 80 in the large and strong field, which tells the story of the toughness of the Field Club's layout, even though in splendid condition at this time. As a matter of fact, only 29 players broke 90.

FIVE TIE AT 84

In the championship flight this morning, Lang Hukill, just recovering from a serious automobile accident, is combatting C. S. Ecker; Bindley Reitz is having a go of it with Tom Campbell; R. S. Euwer and Tom Canon are matched; Joe Wells has a worthy opponent in Frank Campbell, and Greer McIlvain is playing his old friend and links enemy, Dick Long. J. W. Oliver and Jim Lappan are playing the two lucky birds who were fortunate enough to get in the title flight following their playoff for the last two places.

Al Avetta, W. H. Coggswell, H. D. Stalnaker, Joe Crawford and J. H. Young all scored 84s, and this morning battled for divisional rights.

FAVORITES ADVANCE

In the women's tourney, the outstanding favorites remained in the running through yesterday, even though a title possibility, Mrs. J. A. Elleh, of the Field Club, was eliminated. Miss Anjeannette Hunter, of Stanton Heights, and Mrs. J. Raymond Price, expected to meet in the final, continue their weary way; this morning Miss Hunter is playing Mrs. W. H. Boggs, while, in the lower bracket, Mrs. Price is encountering Mrs. C. Wendt, another strong player. Mrs. Boggs was the star who eliminated Mrs. Ellen yesterday.

Entries for the mixed foursome tournament, to be held at Allegheny tomorrow afternoon, will not close until this afternoon, the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania announced.

Leaders in the Field Club play follow:

J. Lang Hukill, Jr., 39-39—78; Joe Wells, 37-42—79; Bindley Reitz, 40-40—80; F. E. Campbell, 42-38—80; T. C. Campbell, 39-41—80; Greer McIlvaine, 42-40—82; R. S. Euwers, 41-41—82; J. W. MELLOW-GANS BOX TONIGHT IN TUBE CITY

The indoor boxing season in Western Pennsylvania will get under way this evening when the Majestic Club, of McKeesport, stages its initial offering of the 1928-29 campaign in its old quarters, the Palisades Roller Rink.

Johnny Mellow, of Detroit, and California Joe Gans, Negro lightweight, mix in the 10-round main bout. Both are favorites with the Tube City fans as a result of the fine form they have shown in previous appearances there. Mellow against Cuddy DeMarco, Freddie Boylstein and Dick Conlon and Gans against Joey LaGrey, Phil Goldstein and Frank Gordini.

Allen Beatty, of McKeesport, and Jack Unglo, of Etna, welters will box the six-round semi-final; Mike Hogan and Dave McConnell, will appear in the second bout, and Mike Polo and Howard Williams will box the opening event.

Four 10-round bouts will be staged in Johnstown tonight as a benefit card for the Police Pension Fund. Harry Taylor, of the North Side, and Young Rudy, of Charleroi, will box the windup; Joe Colombo will meet Bobby Amster. Tug Phillips boxes Jess Hoak, and Linn Jordan meets Wildcat Warzo.

John Hernon, manager and matchmaker of Motor Square Garden, has received the signed contract of Chuck Wiggins for the latter's appearance in the 10-round windup of the opening show of the new season in the Garden two weeks from next Monday. Terry Lingo and Joe Colombo may meet in the semi-final.

Phil Goldstein, local lightweight, lost a close bout to Frankie LaPay, of Troy, N. Y., at Holyoke, Mass., last Monday night. Last Thursday night he defeated Tommy Liberto at New Haven.

Young Stribling's bout with Frankie Wine, at Grand Rapids, Mich., has been postponed from next Tuesday night to September 24, because of the illness of Stribling.

Mike Moran returns to the ring to box Frankie Porto, of Clairton, in the main bout in the Washington Gardens at Washington, Pa., next Monday night.

Floyd Hybert, of Cleveland, and Young Firpo, of Louisville, box the windup in the Jolly Bowl, New Castle, next Monday night. Frankie Moran, local featherweight, boxes Frankie Rie, of Cleveland, in the semi-final. Emmett Rocco and Al Friedman box the windup of a show at Cenennial Field, New Castle, tomorrow night.

tiveness by the appearance of a home boy in the Boston lineup. Bill Regan, of Brookline, will be at second base for the visitors, and the lad who is termed by American League critics one of the best young players to come up to the majors in recent years, is assured a warm reception by his home friends on the occasion of their first opportunity of seeing him in a big league uniform.

TODAY'S exhibition game marks the beginning of the end for the Pirates of 1928 on their home grounds. Tomorrow and Saturday single games will be played with the Reds, and those contests will wind up the National League season here. The Bucs will depart Saturday night for the East to conclude the campaign on the road.

THE Yankees expect to be fortified on their coming Western trip by the return to slab duty of Herb Pennock, star lefthander, who has been kept out of commission by an attack of neuritis in his pitching arm since he shut out the Redsox with three hits on August 12.

Pennock is said to have been given relief by the extraction of several teeth. It is reported he is now able to grip the ball and to wind up without difficulty. He says that his arm is beginning to feel strong again and that there is little or no pain in his fingers.

State Eleven Light, Fast

the versatile Johnny Roepke, Pincura, Lungren and Dangerfield from the backfield. Lesko, varsity end, is gone, and Hasting, Mahoney, Curry and Darragh from the line. Of the last Darragh, Roepke, Lungren, Lesko and Mahoney will be be missed most.

Holdovers who are accorded better than fair chances of being varsity players this fall are Delp, end; McAndrews, center; Miller, halfback; Panecion, Ricker, guards; Parana, center; Stahley, end; Wolff, halfback, and Capt. Greenshields, tackle. The State captain, however, will be out of action for at least six weeks, possibly longer, as he is at present in the school hospital, suffering with bronchial pneumonia. That is a bad break for the Lions, who can ill afford to spare any veteran player.

There are three ends who are making a three-cornered fight of it for the varsity wing jobs. George Delp, the real veteran of the team, is the leading candidate, and practically certain of one post. The others are Stahley, of last year's squad, and Crozier. Delp is a real football player, with good and thorough knowledge of his job and with the needed experience. Stahley looked fair in the game in which he was used last year. Crozier played well as a Freshman. Other wingmen who may develop are Kaplan, Edwards and Best. Edwards is regarded as being particularly promising.

All he has to do is to fulfill expectations.

For the tackles, omitting for the present Capt. Greenshields, who is hors-de-combat, Bezdek has Panecion, no slouch of a defensive player, and possessing quite a bit of experience. Then there is Shawley, Tod Tunter, Zeising and Schlaak. From the way in which the men were mentioned and discussed, Panecion, Greenshields and Shawley loom as the first-string bets. None of the list, however, has any great weight.

I think the Lions are better off for guards than they are for tackles. Martin, a red-headed Sharonite, looms as an extremely likely prospect. Wells is a good lineman; so is Ricker. Both can be developed into strong men for the positions.

Zorella, Duvall and Kosempa are other candidates for better jobs and who are enjoying a fair amount of success in crashing into the first or second-team jobs in the daily scrimmages.

At the center job, left open by Reg Mahoney, Eschbaugh seems to be the likely starting choice, though McAndrews, a member of the 1927 squad, is giving him a run for his money. Parana is sticking on the heels of both. Eschbaugh is the heaviest of the trio, and is one of the biggest men on the squad. He goes about 190.

HAMAS AT FULLBACK

Now for the backfield. Steve Hamas, the football-baseball-lacrosse-boxing star, who plays all these sports and plays them all well, is being counted upon for regular fullback work. Steve is not as heavy as might be desired. He weighs in the neighborhood of 175 pounds, maybe a few pounds under that figure, but he's a fine broken-field runner, and hits hard enough to crack, if not break, most lines. He is fast enough to run the ends and skirt the tackles, which makes him available for more jobs than the usual fullback is called upon to fill.

Allie Wolff, who says the second "F" in his name stands for "Fight" and not "Fun", is making a crackerjack of a bid for one of the halfback positions, and if he shows the stuff continually that he has so far he will be in there.

Joe Miller, Wilkinsburg, Pa., who ran back of the goal line in the Pitt-State game last Thanksgiving, is another halfback candidate, and a real one. Joe is fast, and he has improved his running and especially his footwork this year a great deal. He will be in there plenty.

French, a brother of the former Army all-American and present Philadelphia Athletic outfielder, is after the quarterback job—hot and light. If one could say heavy—one could say he had it clinched. He was the regular Freshman quarterback last year and is about the only man on the squad who knows what the job calls for and is all about.

Other backs of promise are Deidrick, Collins, McCracken, brother of the famous Herbie of Pitt fame; Livezey and Evans. Evans, by the way, is a real punter and has been showing fine form.

The backfield will be lighter on the average than the line, with much weight to be desired in both places.

SCHEDULE TOUGH ONE

The Lions' schedule is not one calculated to inspire a feeling of levity among the coaches, players or any of those folks interested in the State chances and who know how matters stand here this fall.

There are nine games on the card, six of which are of major variety. The big games, of course, are the ones with Pitt, Notre Dame, Syracuse and Penn. Bucknell and Lafayette also come in for their share of interest.

State opens with Lebanon Valley at State College on September 29. The next week Gettysburg, always a tough opponent, though hardly ever strong enough to really threaten the Lions, will be the College Field foe. Then Bucknell, under the guidance of Carl Shavely and Ulhardt Hangartner, the team that upset State in 1927, will return for a battle, one that State has already set its heart on winning, if for no other motive than one of revenge.

Penn will be played on Franklin Field, Philadelphia, in the annual classic on October 20. Syracuse's Orange eleven will provide the opposition October 27, and then Notre Dame and State will clash at Philadelphia to open the November campaign.

George Washington offers somewhat of a rest the following Saturday, and after that game, the Lions will meet Lafayette and then close the season with the annual fracas with Pitt at Pittsburgh.

SOCCER & NEWS by TOM BIRKS

ORGANIZATION meetings are keeping soccer fans busy these days geeting a line on the makeup of the various leagues in the district. The District League met last evening and tonight, in President Harry Fairfield's office, an attempt will be made to organize the first Old Boys' League. Tomorrow evening the Chartiers Valley loop will have its final get-together, with the Monongahela section scheduled to close its roster on Saturday.

The Central League swings into action Saturday with three scheduled games. Pittsburgh will make the trip to Leechburg, Springdale and Harmarville will get together, while the Central A. C. will inaugurate its season by traveling to Swissvale to meet the Union Switch.

On Sunday, the American League will commence operation with two games. Heidelberg apparently is not ready to begin. Only one real game will be scheduled when George Grandy's Dunlevy Club opens its season at Dunlevy after two or three season's rest. The German Sport Club will be the attraction and Meosenberg's eleven will give the upriver fans many interesting moments.

CAMP HAMILTON, WINDBER, Pa., Sept. 13.—It's not only football Coach Sutherland's men are tasting here. A hard scrimmage was staged by the Panther gridders to complete a full day's work, but Head Manager David Stewart had a treat in store for the boys after the workout. Through the courtesy of a company in Windber, 60 tired, but happy gridders, six coaches and seven student managers were transported into town, a distance of five miles, and were guests of Windber's leading movie house. Several reels of football pictures were flashed especially for the Panther gridders.

Three candidates stood out in the scrimmage which continued for over two hours during the afternoon. Ray Montgomery played a stellar game at guard to practically assure him of a varsity position, and Bill Loehr, from last year's frosh team, replaced Guarino at a terminal post for awhile during the scrimmage.

Albert Demollo, Coriopolis boy, who holds down a guard post, also showed up well in the scrimmage.

CARNEGIE TECH.

In spite of the efforts of the coaches to forestall overconfidence, the preliminary sessions of the Carnegie Tech football candidates have been noticeably marked by a rare spirit of optimism among the players and the usual horde of "camp followers."

Signal drill, scrimmages and pushing the charging machine has been a regular feature of the workouts and as usual, is taking its toll in minor bumps and bruises.

The backfield men of last year, such as Letzelter, Moorhead, Stauffer and Kerr have been used interchangeably with Eyth, Thayer, Flanagan, Hilty, Karcis and Carlson. The intense heat yesterday afternoon spoiled the program which the coaches mapped out. The Tartan mentors did not care to take any chances of overworking the men during the heat spell.

DUQUESNE.

The axe, long raised aloft over the Duquesne football squad, dropped at last with a thud yesterday, lopping off 25 men. This leaves 82 still in the camp and another cut, not so large, is expected next week. The cut was scheduled for earlier in the week, but it was held off from day to day. The potential quarterbacks were hit hardest and of the original 23 who reported, only 11 are left.

Of the quarters now available, McCarth and O'Toole are the best, while Bud Devinney outranks the new men.

Reagan's linemen are coming along well with the veteran line holding the inside track.

THROWN FROM SULKY

DOVER, Sept. 13.—A. Crumrine, driver of Patchen O'Conner, bay gelding owned by William Breckel, Utica, escaped injury yesterday afternoon when thrown against the fence from his sulky at the start of the first heat in the second race of the 2:24 pace. The horse finished the heat without a driver in sixth position, but was placed last. The horse stopped of its own accord at the end of the heat and entered the stable without assistance.

GAGNON BEATS FUENTE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Jack Gagnon, New Bedford heavyweight, won the decision over Tony Fuente, Los Angeles Mexican, in 10 rounds here last night.

Third Quarter's Business Promises Better Results.

By B. C. FORBES

THE third quarter of the year promises to yield better business results than either the first or the second quarter.

What it may yet bring in the stock market no mortal can foretell, because speculation is not governed by actual developments throughout the country but to an abnormal extent by the stupendous operations of powerful operators.

AGRICULTURAL conditions and prospects contain more comfort for consumers than for grokers. The assurance of bumper crops of wheat and corn naturally has hurt prices. Cotton is similarly circumstanced.

Whether small crops and high prices are better for growers than large crops and low prices is often debated, but banner yields from the soil unquestionably make for more activity in many directions. Railroads enjoy heavier hauls. The vast number of companies manufacturing products from raw food materials get their supplies at low cost and are usually able, as a consequence, to earn larger margins of profit.

Very generous crops, too, help to ease the cost of living.

THE building industry, ranking next in importance, maintains its extraordinary virility. When you travel, you are told in almost every city that construction has caught up with demand; yet the records for the whole country show that building shows little signs of slackening. Speculation in urban real estate has quieted at many places, but this is a healthy rather than an unhealthy development. Incidentally, farm land values in a number of states have been showing modest but unmistakable improvement.

Less is now heard about unemployment—although this does not mean that unemployment is nonexistent. The building trades have called for a full quota of workers, and farming operations are providing work for many. The general wage level is stoutly maintained, with advances more common than reductions.

THE automobile industry, which, like building, has many ramifications, is more than fulfilling expectations. One company alone (Chevrolet) will this month, it is stated, produce its millionth car since January 1. Ford is reported to be gradually creeping towards normal output; most leading manufacturers are running substantially ahead of last year, and the industry as a whole is employing more workers than at any other time in its history. The able men guiding the motor industry have succeeded gratifyingly in overcoming the old-time seasonal peaks and valleys.

AT last the steel industry appears to be making real progress towards obtaining profitable prices for most of its products. Orders lately have been sufficient to overtop shipments, a favorable sign. New records in more than one direction are likely to be achieved by this industry during 1928.

Even the long-distraught oil industry gives some indication of raising itself out of chaos. Rubber companies will benefit from very low-cost raw materials, as higher-prices inventories are worked off. Electric companies are doing well. Conditions among cotton mills are uneven; most are struggling along against odds, but some that have adapted themselves to changed conditions are making money. The shoe industry is not as dull as it has been.

Railway traffic has not been running far enough below a year ago to cut seriously into net earnings and the imminence of the heavy crop movement brightens the outlook. The majority of public utility companies are able to show some gain in volume and in profits.

In the general retail field the same old story is recorded: Substantial gains by chain and mail stores, but irregular showings by independent merchants. The latest reports are slightly more cheerful.

IT is now taken for granted that the political campaign will not be permitted to affect business or industry. More concern is felt over the very high rates for money brought about by the inordinate stock market speculation. Unless the stock market violently interferes, business should continue to move along smoothly and at, perhaps, a more accelerated pace.

STOCKS RALLY AFTER EARLY DECLINE

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—The stock market displayed a complete reversal of form today, selling off sharply in the morning and then rallying briskly after mid-day. Early declines of 1 to 7 points in the general list, and 3 to 14 points in the amusement issues were cut down, or wiped out, and a long list of pool specialties bid up 1 to 5 points above yesterday's final quotations. Trading showed a tendency to turn dull on the declines.

Lowering of the call money renewal rate from 7½ to 7 per cent, coupled with the circulation of an optimistic statement on business conditions by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, helped to revive bullish enthusiasm. Shipment of gold from England to Canada and the establishment of another new low-level by sterling exchange again aroused hopes of early gold imports into this country. Otherwise, there was little in the day's news to influence the price movement.

Early selling was inspired largely by the belief that the recent rapid advance had weakened the technical position of the market, and that a downward revision of prices was necessary. This was particularly true of the amusement stocks which had been bid up to fantastic levels on the strength of merger reports. Warner Bros. common broke 12½ points and the A stock 14, but both rallied about six points from their low levels in the early afternoon rally. Fox Film dropped 6 points and recovered, and Stanley dropped nearly 6 and recovered 4. Curtiss was hammered down 7 points and Keita Albee, Victor Talking Machine, Briggs and Wright showed extreme losses of 3 points or more.

Several new leaders were brought forward in the afternoon. Standard Commercial Tobacco, directors of which have under consideration a 10 per cent stock dividend, in addition to the regular cash payment, ran up 4 points to a new high record at 37⅜. New peak prices also were registered by Chrysler, Packard, Graham-Paige, Davison Chemical, Mid-Continent Petroleum and Cerro de Pasco.

Rails, which heretofore have taken little part in the advances, presented several points of strength. St. Louis Southwestern ran up 4 points and New Haven 2.

PITTSBURGH PLATE GLASS MAKES BIG GAIN HERE

LONE STAR GAS ACTIVE IN PITTSBURGH MARKET

Lone Star Gas was traded in substantial volume in the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. The stock opened at yesterday's best price of 54½. It was in good supply at that figure and dropped back to 54 in the early trading. Transactions in the other fuel stocks were in smaller volume. Arkansas Natural Gas preferred sold unchanged at 7¼.

Carnegie Metals opened a fraction lower. A block of First National Bank shares sold a fraction lower at 374. May Stores traded at 22½.

Pittsburgh Plate Glass was the big feature in the local market with an advance of more than 30 points. The stock went into new high ground for the year at 300. Rumors were heard of an impending stock dividend and split up.

American Window Glass Machine common also sold higher, moving in sympathy with the big glass stock.

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

Progress in Welding Structural Steel—Dodge Motor Company Strikes Stride With Senior Six.

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE rivet hammer, synonymous with skyscraper construction, may be forever silenced if the prophesies of electrical engineers come true.

Years ago the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company found that the technique of making large steel castings was not keeping up with the rapid growth in the size of electrical machinery. Both the engineering problem and the costs were becoming obstacles.

ELECTRIC welding has been developed as a solution. Castings are being rapidly replaced with fabricated steel parts which have been produced by pressing plates and shapes and welding the elements together.

Lower cost, lighter weight and greater strength have been secured in the new method of construction.

ELECTRIC welding is now being applied to structural steel. Several buildings have been successfully erected for the Westinghouse company without a single tap on a rivet to disturb the neighborhood.

The tremendous amount of development work necessary to meet construction difficulties in such a novel manner has kept the cost somewhat above the older system of working with steel.

When experience has allowed methods to be standardized, however, competitive costs are expected to result.

SO FAR as strength is concerned, welding has stood up under every test. Welded beams which have been subjected to every conceivable distortion have shown greater strength at the welded point than in the remainder of the beam.

The great saving in structural steel work promises to be in the elimination of angles and braces. Instead of complicated joints to be riveted the members are merely supplied with one or two bolts to hold them temporarily in place and the beams are directly welded to each other.

THE punching of rivet holes will be eliminate from the work of fabricating the steel and in addition smaller sections of material can be used. The rivet holes form a weak point. Extra size must be allowed to compensate for this. No such provisions must be made in a welded building.

IN A large building the steel sections are heavier at the base than at the top of the structure. Strength has to be added to the lower portions to carry the weight of the upper part. The higher the building the greater will be the proportion of saving in steel.

THE production of Dodge cars is beginning to reflect the introduction of models with a greater appeal to public taste.

In August 27,000 Dodge cars were completed. This was 43 per cent more than in July. It was a greater number than were made in any previous month of this year except March when output was being pushed to supply demonstration models of the Victory Six. It was greater than in any of the first eight months of 1927.

THE Victory Six was hailed as a new departure for Dodge. It marked recognition of the fact that the public now demands more than just a mechanically good automobile.

The Senior Six carried such a policy even further. There are many Chrysler touches in its lines, its mechanical parts and in its fittings. The Dodge organization either had learned something from Chrysler success or the engineers of the parent company took a large part in Dodge design several months ago.

THE new Senior Six was expected several months ago. The completion of merger plans apparently delayed its introduction until a car could be made more in the Chrysler manner.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The cotton market opened easy today at a decline of 16 to 29 points under renewed liquidation, local and Southern selling, promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables and reports of continued favorable weather in the South.

December sold off to 17.61c at the opening, new low ground for the movement. But covering and trade buying caused rallies of a few points in early trading. The bulges were not fully maintained, and the market was barely steady at the end of the first hour, the more active months showing net declines of 12 to 26 points.

Private cables reported general liquidation and hedging in Liverpool with a poor offtake, and that buyers of cotton cloth and yarns in Manchester were holding off owing to distrust of prices.

The early selling movement continued until December contracts sold off to 17.60c and March to 17.51c or about 30 to 31 points below yesterday's closing quotations during the forenoon. Offerings then subsided somewhat and there was covering together with some trade and local buying, which caused rallies of 7 or 8 points from the lowest. The volume of business then tapered off, however, and the market was quiet at midday with active months showing net losses of 22 to 24 points. The early decline was accompanied by reports of increasing Southern hedging, while the trade buying was said to be chiefly on scale-down orders.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—Unexpected weakness of wheat quotations at Liverpool led to early downturns today in wheat values here. Rallies quickly ensued, however. Good demand on declines being helped by corn strength and by notice taken that United States wheat growers were being officially advised to hold back their wheat. Opening unchanged to 1¼c lower, Chicago wheat subsequently recovered. Corn started at ½c decline to ¾c advance, and later scored gains all around. Oats were firm, provisions easy.

At noon wheat was unchanged to ⅝c higher and corn at ⅝c to 1⅛c advance.

In connection with news that domestic producers are receiving encouragement from Secretary Jardine to refrain systematically from marketing wheat while prices are depressed, word was at hand today that the amount of grain arriving at country elevators northwest is about what could be expected. But that the percentage of sales as compared to that is stored is a subject of general comment. From 20 to 30 per cent is sold, the remainder stored. Under such circumstances and with the corn market at times showing notable advances, wheat values here developed relative steadiness despite downturns at Liverpool.

Excellent purchasing of corn available for immediate use gave impetus today to an upward swing in prices both for the September delivery and for new crop corn contracts. Speculative offerings quickly dried up, and the September delivery prices crossed to above $1.00 a bushel for the first time in quite a while, and showing nearly 5 cents a bushel advance since Tuesday.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

A LIBERAL variety of the snappiest of new song hits, sentimental ballads and soothing melodies will go on the air tonight from the various broadcasting studios of this city.

One of the most popular of these programs will be titled "Spanish Waters," the offering of the River Choristers.

This presentation will come through WCAE at 8 o'clock. With a program drawn from the music of the Basque boatmen and the sea towns of Spain, many of the loveliest Spanish melodies will be heard as part of the Choristers' period. Du Pont's "Rosita" and the familiar "La Golondrina" brighten a program which concludes with a special arrangement of "A La Luz de la Luna" made by James Haupt, director and arranger of the Choristers' vocal and instrumental compositions.

Another one of WCAE's broadcasts tonight that will win the favor of many of the listeners-in will be the Major and Minor Boys. Victor Herbert's "Sweet Mystery of Life" is the outstanding number in a program drawn almost exclusively from the works of later composers. Among other presentations will be: "Flora," "In a Little Love Nest," "Come On Along with the Bene Birds," "Who Wouldn't Be Blue" and "Was It a Dream?"

"Ships," an O. Henry story, will feature the Re-Told Tales broadcast through KDKA at 8 o'clock. The radio adaptation was made by Henry Fisk Carlton and the production is under the direction of Gerald Stopp. The efficacy of bales of cockleburrs to force the sale of shoes in the tropics is proven in this amusing tale of two young men, a girl, a foolish father who also is a shoe-merchant, and the continual arrival of various ships at the port of Coralio.

"Ruddigore," a Gilbert and Sullivan work, will go on the air from WJAS at 10 o'clock, played by the United Light Opera Company. The opera is well named for it deals satirically with crime and bloodshed. The plot tells of the Baronets of Ruddigore, who, because of an ancestor's burning of a witch, were cursed with the necessity of committing a crime a day, or else dying in torture. The attempts made to evade the gory obligations of the race form an interesting story.

Gertrude Mohr, who will present a piano recital through WCAE at 7 o'clock, will devote 15 minutes to compositions by the Russian composers, Cui, Karganoff and Nicode. During the other half of the program Miss Mohr will play the "Suite," by Nathaniel Dett.

Mrs. William MacClay Hall, chairman of the Atwater Kent Foundation Contest of Western Pennsylvania, will give further information of the 1928 contest, which will be held during the next three months, in her address from the studio of WCAE at 7:45 p. m.

Miss Eleanor Herring, violinist, who will be assisted by Miss Kathryn Gross, pianist, in a program to come from KDKA at 6:05 p. m., is a member of the faculty of the Pittsburgh Musical Institute and is active in concert work in Pittsburgh.

Scrappy Commissioners

They Can't Keep Their Tempers These Warm Days.

It is perhaps too much to expect our County Commissioners to keep politics out of public business, but can we not expect them to be above alley warfare at their sessions? The "tough mug" language passed between Commissioners McGovern and Babcock in a tilt about the appointment of a son of Senator Max Leslie as an assistant county solicitor by Joseph G. Armstrong, chairman of the board, is discreditable to say the least.

Mr. Armstrong possibly has the legal right to appoint any person whom he deems qualified, but that does not warrant him making appointments at which the public may look askance, to put it mildly. We are not questioning the ability of the younger Mr. Lesile, nor his fitness for the job, but the fact that he is the son of Senator Leslie makes his selection an implication that the kind of machine politics which has come into distaste in Pittsburgh may have been a deciding factor in naming him. There should be some semblance of gentlemanly conduct in the sessions of the County Commissioners. They should at least keep their record on the level of that of the City Council, which is a model compared to that of the county board.

"Stop" Street System Worthy of Trial Here

The Public Safety Committee of Council is considering an ordinance designed to regulate traffic which should become a law. Submitted by Director Clark, of the Department of Public Safety, as the recommendation of the Better Traffic Committee, it provides that certain thoroughfares, including Baum boulevard, Bigelow boulevard, and parts of Chateau street, Friendship avenue, Murray avenue and Wilkins avenue, be established as "through" traffic arteries at which all motorists must come to a full stop before proceeding.

This is an experiment that has proved successful in other cities and has been tried to some extent in Pittsburgh. There now are some through traffic streets at which motorists coming from certain intersecting streets are expected to come to a complete stop, but the plan has not been tried in any extensive way. Rightly operated, as the system is in other cities, it speeds up traffic in the arterial street and gives the motorist from an intersecting street the chance to make more speed when he turns into it.

The plan, if adopted, should meet with approval of motorists, but likely would require some enforcement here at first. At some of our present "stop" intersections some motorists do not actually stop unless there is traffic moving ahead of them. If the new plan becomes operative, and it should, these offenders must be taught that a "stop" sign means come to a halt whether traffic is visible or not.

Sitting at Their Ease

Different Marriages, Different Ways.

A PRINCESS MARRIED, SITTING DOWN.

This interesting little scene shows the marriage of Princess Elizabeth, of Schaumburg-Lippe, and Herr Benevenuto Hauptmann.

It is interesting because of the personalities married, and because of the fact that, unlike the average couple, they are married at their ease, sitting down side by side.

This probably, presumably, in honor of the bride's rank.

The groom also inherits "rank," for he is the son of Gerhard Hauptmann, one of the most famous writers in Germany.

Many nations have read with deep emotion his "Sunken Bell" and other writings.

There is nothing to shock our sense of democratic fitness in this little scene.

It is right to "render unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's."

It is reasonable to render unto royalty what royalty is accustomed to, WHERE ROYALTY LIVES.

Even in the Bible, as you read the Book of Revelation, you find that heaven itself has certain RANKS AND PRECEDENCES.

Those four horsemen riding out, white, black, red and pale, certainly must be more imposing and impressive than the average angel.

And you almost get tired of the elders, as conspicuous and omnipresent as a Greek chorus, and of the strange beasts that would make an ordinary angel from some Rotarian organization feel unimportant.

Men Forget Easily

And That Is Fortunate.

Prosperity, comfort, peace and ease are the great things and cause men to forget even the deepest bitterness.

German flags were seen in Paris at the signing of the peace treaty, and Stresemann, the first German Foreign Minister to set foot in Paris in 61 years, was loudly cheered as he reached the city. Men's capacity to forget and forgive is one of their most valuable assets.

Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 13.—Hollywood's White Way is Hollywood Boulevard, but it hasn't the diamond-like electric glitter of Broadway. Its lights are almost of the nebulous delicate glass-tubed variety, presenting soft greens, pinks, oranges, red and blue.

Its big buildings have hidden colored lights to splash their pillars and cornices. The shops are smart, with deep entrances and an array of show windows. Many are in private cottages with lawns. In these one may see a single hat, gown, etc., in a brilliantly lighted window.

There are countless beauty salons and coiffure parlors in every block. No community in the world uses such a quantity of beauty preparations or so frequently patronize hair dressers. Beauty here pays golden dividends and every girl struggles to achieve it.

Scores of shops advertise "marked down" permanent waves and eyebrow pluckings. The sidewalks are wide and dotted with scores of characters Hollywood knows so well—from Peter the Hermit with his shock of long hair and 10 trailing daschunds to "Memphis," the newsboy, who discusses Epictitus.

Stand on any corner for 15 minutes and you are bound to see a movie celebrity. More than Broadway ever loved the actor, does Hollywood boulevard love picture people. There is obeisance to the camera carrier or the assistant property man. Even a water boy is of importance.

The billboards of Hollywood, and all around Los Angeles for that matter, are works of scenic art. Some are colorfully bizarre and others have a restrained simplicity. They revolve, turn and whirl and the names of the advertisers are in electric lights.

A single billboard will often occupy a huge hillside terraced plot, abloom with flowers, with a series of searchlights playing one it. There are other signs of stucco resembling those heroic statues flung up in bronze in public squares. Hollywood has stretches of beauty rivaling any city in the world.

The Hollywood Bowl is the finest outdoor operatic venture in the world. Situated in a natural bowl and surrounded by picturesque hills, it will seat more than 50,000. Here during summermonths one may hear the best of the operatic stars and symphony orchestras for as little as 50 cents. Folk go early and take their dinners for a picnic spread. And the way a high clear note can go reverberating around the hills is something dandy.

* * *

Between six and 6:30 in the evening the dairy luncheons fill with the tremulous wide-eyed young girls and their eternal mothers. They eat early to be in bed early and thus store up beauty sleep. After that come the film extras, studio workers and such. Outside of farming communities, there are few places that stir out of sleep so early. At 6 in the morning Hollywood is a beehive of activity, like New York around 9 o'clock.

* * *

Girls and boys in swimming trunks are everywhere—tanned a nut brown. Housewives go from beaches to kitchens to cook dinner wearing bathing costumes. There are records of many being clad in nothing but bathing suits from early April until September.

Hollywood has oodles of daily, weekly and monthly film periodicals dealing with everything from advanced information on pre-releases to the most intimate gossip of cinema darlings. All have a steady following and manage to continue publication year after year. Nobody knows how or why.

* * *

The young sheik in golf pants, sport shirt and leading a police dog, is a pronounced Hollywood type. This amusing sartorial gesture is chiefly for visiting firemen, and to create the impression of being a movie celebrity. Many heighten the conceit by carrying a director's megaphone.

* * *

The girls are brilliantly artificial in their frankly decorative makeup. They resemble chorus maids facing the daylight in stage paint. And there seems to be no pronounced shortage in adenoids.

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Bullets and Bandits

"A train traveling sixty miles on hour; a cannon ball fired in the opposite direction from rear end of train, at some speed; at end of one minute what would be the distance between projectile and train? This question came up between a bunch of mail chauffeurs and armed guards, most of whom are ex-service men—STEVE FRANCE, Armed Guard Section, Chicago."

ANS. The projectile would be one mile behind the train, but would drop straight to the ground upon leaving muzzle of gun. If the elevation of the gun was sixteen feet above the ground the projectile would occupy one second in falling. The velocity derived from the powder exactly neutralizes the velocity shared by the ball with the train before gun was fired. It is a mere matter of addition and subtraction. We neglect the slight acceleration of the train by the recoil of the gun. If the ball were fired from front end of train, its velocity with reference to the ground would be two miles an hour, and at the end of one minute would be one mile ahead of train if it could be kept from falling.

Here are some calculations that ought to be of importance to mail car guards and chauffeurs: Suppose, for instance, that a bandit, standing beside the road, fired at the guard on the rear of the car and that the guard returned the fire, the speed of car and projectile being as before stated. Then the guard's fire would be ineffective because his bullet could not advance beyond the spot where it left the muzzle. The effect of the firing would simply be to destroy the bullet's motion with the train, thus bringing it to rest in space, so that the train would speed away from it and leave it to fall to the ground.

But now suppose the bandit to be following a few feet behind the car at the same speed, so that he neither gained nor lost distance. Then if the guard fired at him he would collide with the bullet at the speed of sixty miles an hour, or eighty-eight feet a second, unless he were so far behind that the bullet fell to the ground before he met it. It would be just the same as if the bullet had been simply suspended in the air, with no force acting upon it but gravity. The fate of the bandit would resemble that of a June bug hit by the windshield of a speeding auto, except that the victim would be the moving object.

We may also consider the effects of firing in the same direction as that of the train or the car. Then, as already said, the speed of the projectile would be double that of the train, with reference to the ground, and the momentum would be twice as great as if it had been fired from a stationary point. It would strike a motionless object on, or at the side of the track with a velocity of 176 feet per second, and if that object was a bandit speeding toward the car at sixty miles an hour he and the projectile would meet at a speed of 180 miles an hour.

But a projectile fired with the train—i. e., in the direction of its motion—would strike the ground in one second (if the gun's elevation was sixteen feet), and would then continue to roll over the ground at a rapidly decreasing speed.

The thing to be remembered is that motions can be added and subtracted, and combined in many ways, when they affect the same body. In all these calculations it is customary to neglect the effect of atmospheric resistance, but friction with the ground cannot be neglected when the object in motion falls from flying to rolling.

The Chief Concern

TO MEET the increased cost of rail mail haul, the Postoffice Department is considering higher rates in the parcel post.

There is a limit to what this traffic will bear. We may not have reached it yet, but it cannot be far off.

Why not forget that venerable bugaboo, the postal deficit, and center on the truth that the prime consideration is good service?

Isn't It So?

Any man can come back if there's no reason why he shouldn't go back.

It is always possible to get a soft berth, but you generally have to rout someone else out of it.

Don't Show Up Ignorance

ONE of the bores of any gathering is the person who asks of others questions that he thinks they cannot answer.

Usually this is done by one who has studied a little and gained a smattering of many subjects, which he desires to display.

Sometimes it is done by a person versed in a certain line and anxious to make known his knowledge.

The really well informed individual does not have to ask direct questions in order to discover the extent of one's education.

A short time spent in conversation is bound to bring out things that tell.

The learned person never tries to embarrass any one by questions that show up the ignorance of another.

Those who have studied most know how little one can know even after many years of trying to gain knowledge.

The most effective way of stopping the person who tries to embarrass you is to ask him a question about a subject on which you are well informed.

If you have not taken time to perfect yourself on any one topic you do not deserve sympathy when a bore of the kind mentioned uses you as a target.

Take your medicine.

Perfumes

THE lily's lifted cup is sweet
Beneath the pallid moon,
Where night breeze whispers,
"Life is fleet
And morn must come too soon!"

Perfumes are in a loved one's hair,
In tang of sea and sail,
And in the orange blooms maids wear
Against a wedding veil.

There are rare odors that arise
From altar and from shrine,
Vague symbols of the mysteries,
Ineffable, divine.

But there are sweets no man forgets,
Though long years wax and wane,
In breath of wistful violets
All drenched in April rain!

Great Passages from the Bible

The Judgment of Solomon

(I. Kings, 3; 16-28)

THEN came there two women, that were harlots, unto the king, and stood before him.

And the one woman said, O my lord, I and this woman dwell in one house; and I was delivered of a child with her in the house.

And it came to pass the third day after that I was delivered, that this woman was delivered also: and we were together; there was no stranger with us in the house, save we two in the house.

And this woman's child died in the night; because she overlaid it.

And she arose at midnight, and took my son from beside me, while thine handmaid slept, and laid it in her bosom, and laid her dead child in my bosom.

And when I rose in the morning to give my child suck, behold, it was dead: but when I had considered it in the morning, behold, it was not my son, which I did bear.

And the other woman said, Nay; but the living is my son, and the dead is thy son. And this said, No; but the dead is thy son, and the living is my son. Thus they spake before the king.

Then said the king, The one saith, This is my son that liveth, and thy son is the dead: and the other saith, Nay; but thy son is the dead and my son is the living.

And the king said, Bring me a sword. And they brought a sword before the king.

And the king said, Divide the living child in two, and give half to the one, and half to the other.

Then spake the woman whose the living child was unto the king, for her bowels yearned upon her son, and she said, O my lord, give her the living child, and in no wise slay it. But the other said, Let it be neither mine nor thine, but divide it.

Then the king answered and said, Give her the living child, and in no wise slay it: she is the mother thereof.

And all Irsael heard of the judgment which the king had judged; and they feared the king: for they saw that the wisdom of God was in him, to do judgment.

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

THESE California folks do brag about the climate just a tiny bit, I reckon. I ain't ready to say they over-rate the climate, mind you, but once in a while they'll kinda brag a little. So they get jokes about them, and this here is one of them.

A guy was trying to get into heaven and St. Peter says to him, "Where'd you say you come from?"

"From California, and I want to tell you, Peter, if ever you're out our way—"

"Well," says Peter, "you kin come in if you want to, but I know you won't like it."

Sharing the Honors

THE two men at the quarry had been set the task of smashing an enormous slab of stone. After half an hour of hard work, involving the breaking of two hammer handles, the slab remained intact. The foreman then strolled up, looking disgusted.

"Give me that hammer," he said to one of the men, and with one mighty blow the slab was broken in two.

"There," said the foreman, complacently, "that's the idea."

"Oh, yes," agreed the other. "But don't forget that me an' my mate have been softenin' it for the last half-hour!"

Television!

AN AGED lady, evidently up from the country, made a telephone call. Having finished her conversation, she left the booth. Ten minutes later she returned, and once again took off the receiver.

"No, I didn't want a number," she explained. "But I left my umbrella behind just now; it is not here. I suppose you haven't seen it?"

Around the World in Twenty-Four Days

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

Some of us older folks can recall sitting up nights when we were young in order to read Jules Verne's "Around the World in Eighty Days."

But what thrills one generation may bore the next.

Charles Collyer and John Henry Mears on July 22 returned from a trip around the world in just 23 days, 15 hours and 8 seconds.

The last record before that was by Wells and Evans in 1926 in about twenty-eight days.

Most readers of newspapers have noted this flight, but it may be well to recapitulate it.

They started from the city of New York on the Olympic, which carried them and their airplane to Cherbourg. From the latter city they took off six days later, and in six more days they had crossed Europe and Asia and landed in Tokio, Japan.

From Japan they boarded the steamer Empress of Russia, on which they went to Victoria, B. C. From Victoria they went to Spokane and then to Minneapolis. On this leg of their journey they made an eighteen hundred mile flight in one day.

They left Minneapolis about a quarter to six New York time on July 21. This was the most difficult part of their journey. There were storms and fog most of the way. But they landed at Miller field on Staten Island around seven o'clock July 22, and from thence hurried to the Olympic pier from which they had started, thus completing their journey in about twenty-three days.

This is news now, but it is not improbable that we shall soon be reading of adventurers making the tour of the world in twenty-four hours instead of twenty-four days.

The construction of airplanes will only have to be improved upon so that they can maintain long non-stop flights and achieve more speed. Comparing the efficiency of present-day airplanes with those of the Wright brothers this is not unlikely.

Collyer and Mears traveled altogether 19,725 miles at an average speed of 840 miles a day. Fifteen days were spent on ships and eight in the air. By steamer they made 8,535 miles of the trip, and they flew 11,190 miles, averaging more than a thousand miles a day in the plane.

If they had a plane that could go only a trifle faster, and if they could carry enough gasoline to make a non-stop flight, they could have circled the world in a much shorter time.

One reason they were successful is that they carried a mascot, a white terrier dog called Tailwind. Another reason, put forward by people who are disgustingly material, was that their 400-horse power motor was so well constructed that the mechanics who looked over it at Victoria did nothing to it, and that, as Collyer said, "We carried neither a screw driver nor a wrench."

You may take your choice of these two explanations. Or, if you want another explanation, you can say that it was all due to the static in the air, or to the spirits.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

ONE of the cute little habits that women have is that of threatening to leave home. They will divorce them, they will. They will get a lot of alimony and get a regular fellow for their next husband. The idea!—No chinchilla coat! Mabel has one, and Hortense, and she can't have even a mink.

There is a cure. A perfect one, and instantaneous. Tell "the little woman" to go. Tell her it would relieve your mind a great deal if she did and then go to bed and go to sleep.

In the morning she will be asking you how you like your toast. American husbands submit to this bull dozing all too frequently.

You're welcome.

One reason husbands in America are imposed upon, is that they are so indulgent and so good natured. A man whose wife tried to boss him, and with considerable success, announced he would no longer help with the housework. He had all he could do at his office and at night he didn't want to work. Someone had told him to be "hard boiled." He was trying.

It was a grand play, but—

The next day she began to act ill. She didn't put on rouge and she looked pale. She was reclining in a house gown when he came home. He felt like a brute. She kept this up for several days and in order to have her well and happy he stepped right on the treadmill again. And if he doesn't stay there she can think of oodles of tricks she hasn't tried yet.

And they say they won't make good politicians!

Mary Elizabeth Swinnerton, daughter of the famous cartoonist, Jimmy, is to be married. A grown up girl now, and always pretty from the time she was a baby. One night when she was about five, her mother was at the theater. She played the phonograph and after she would put a record on the machine she would run and curl up in a big arm chair and watch it while she listened. Finally she said: "Leelola, does it eat crackers or gasoline?" what a shame she grew up!

Chemistry is to aid now in the manufacture of perfume and it's going to be cheaper and the odors synthetic.

Can you imagine how this world will reek! If it is as different from real flowers as synthetic onion extract that comes in bottles is different from onions, and as WORSE, God help us all!

OUR trade commissioner in Germany tells of a new German possible skating rinks without ice.

But who in this weather would want a chemical discovery which makes skating rink without ice!
